They're in the New Refectory!

BROWN'S $2,000,000 REFECTORY is finished at last. In fact, by the time you read this it will have been operating over a month and a half and will have served more than 200,000 meals. It's a handsome addition to the Campus, an inspiring indication of the rising Quadrangle's promise. But best of all, it is already beginning to prove the faith of those who conceived it as a vital need in the undergraduate life of Brown.

For Brown, the Refectory—third unit to be completed in the $10,000,000 Building and Development program (Whitehall, a classroom building, and Andrews Hall at Pembroke were opened in 1946 and 1947 respectively)—is a 14-year-old dream come true. In his first report to the Corporation in 1937, President Wriston spoke of the University's need for increased student housing and dining facilities. In 1948 the Corporation voted unanimous approval of the Quadrangle project. In 1949 ground for the Refectory was formally broken by President Wriston, Chancellor Henry D. Sharpe '94 and Chairman Arthur B. Homer '17 of the Student Housing Board. On Jan. 31, 1951, the most specialized college dining hall in the United States was opened for breakfast.

A Campus Revolution

As Henry H. Smith '40 said in a nine-page feature story in the Providence Sunday Journal's "Rhode Islander," "One day it was an unknown quantity—an orderly mass of stainless and structural steel, concrete, glazed tile, quarry rock, fans, filters, pipes, traps, unopened cartons of china, glasses, silver, and ice cream machine parts and boxed and frozen food. The next day, 1184 hungry students, who wouldn't have had any other place to eat anyway, filed in, sat down (a little awed by all the splendor) and ate hot food."

As for William N. Davis, Manager of Student Residences and Dining Halls, and his assistant, Alan P. Maynard '47, and all the rest—"One day they were getting ready; the next they were serving dinners like crazy."

The marvel of it was that they went about it with such a minimum of confusion. Swiftly, easily, the undergraduates slipped into a new habit in campus living. It was revolutionary in many respects, although you had to stop to appreciate it. The doors on the unloved Flat Top were locked. The old cafeteria in Faunce House was shortly to become a game room. Seventeen other separate kitchens and 17 dining rooms, with 17 refrigerators and 17 storage rooms and 17 dishwashing set-ups (variously efficient) and 17 pantries in the fraternity houses, were now all consolidated.

But, more than that, everyone was now walking three times a day to the common meeting place and converging on it, everyone was under one roof for a meal. There was the impact of everyone being served at once, yet quietly and with some decent regard for the amenities. All were there together, and yet there was the intimate sociability of your own table, without the overwhelming sense or sound of numbers.

A few "bugs" appeared in the system at once. Davis and Maynard were watching for them, of course. Some equipment which was called for in the specifications and will improve matters was not yet at hand—certain heat-retaining covers, for example. Acoustic treatment of the fraternity rooms was ordered. A few details of operation were promptly revised, but the building proved flexible. With a loyal staff responding to the great new challenge, learning a refinement here and there with each new meal, and plainly proud to be on show before the boys and a swarm of visitors, the big job went well. The wonderful new giant on the Hill was proving benevolent as well as awesome.

Architects' Two-Level Design

Occupying space that extends the length of Thayer St. between George St. and what was formerly a portion of Benevolent St., the Refectory parallels the south wing of Hege-man Hall and has its northwest corner opposite the east end of St. Stephen's Church. In keeping with the entire Quad-rangle project which is rapidly taking shape around it, the Refectory is of Colonial Georgian architecture.

The brick exterior, laid in Flemish bond, covers a basic structure of reinforced concrete. The roof is slate, the off-white trim—massive columns framing the four main en-trances, window balustrades, roof cupolas—is of wood. Co-lonial green doors are set off by brass hardware. All the main entrances face in towards the Quadrangle Campus, two on the west and two on the south. Employees' entrances, the delivery entry and auxiliary exits are on Thayer Street.

The Refectory is designed on two main levels, dining and kitchen, with a basement level below the kitchen for ma-chinery and storage. Hub of the building is a square central core that houses an elevator and four endless-chain type sub-veyors connecting the dining and kitchen levels. Surrounding this hub on four sides is the serving area around which are centered, on the kitchen level, all the food preparation and dishwashing facilities and, on the dining level, the main din-ing room and the 18 perimeter dining rooms.

This central serving area is the key to the Refectory's unique efficiency. When food arrives via the elevator, hot from the kitchen on four trucks that hold 400 servings each, it is moved to the four serving counters that are lined up, two to a side, along the north and south walls of the serving area. Here the food is redistributed to stainless steel platters and serving dishes for the waiters to carry to the tables. Each serving counter has steam table, toaster and refrigerator facilities to accommodate 400 meals—just enough to feed a quadrant, one of the four sections into which the dining area is divided for serving efficiency.

Waiters and Family Style

The serving counters not only keep the food hot until serv-ing time, but they also permit more personal service on the part of the waiters. Even special athletic menus can be given to training tables. Wrestlers, for example, have two groups—one for building, the other for controlling weight. Bread and rolls are kept warm in portable ovens that can be adjusted for crispness, and coffee is poured from glass-lined urns that dispense it with or without cream at the flip of a lever. Water runs ice-cold from dining-room faucets. Built-in serving stands that line the inner walls of the dining room (the outer walls of the serving area) provide cupboard space for silver-ware, glasses and newly designed University-crested china.

Since each waiter takes care of only two tables and the furthest any waiter has to travel from serving counter to

Lights on the dining room walls signal to the waiters that the doors have been locked and the food is ready to be served. Service is family style: the waiters leave the food on the tables, and the students "dish it out" for themselves. The walnut-finished tables are square, each one seating eight men in matching armed chairs. The furniture is the same for both main and small dining rooms, and the tables (designed along lines suggested by Davis), are collapsible for storage within six inches of space.

Not Merely "a Place to Eat"

And so, today, are some 1200 contract students being served each noon and each evening in the 100-table capacity main dining room and the 17 fraternity dining rooms. (When full, the dining area can serve 1640 undergraduates.) At breakfast time they wait on themselves, filing past the serving counters cafeteria-style. To speed up the service, wheeled refrigerators that hold six cases of milk bottles each are rolled up directly from the delivery dock, and portable grills for frying eggs, griddle cakes, etc., are brought up from the kitchen. In the morning, the eight electric-eye operated doors are locked open to speed up the waiter runs between the serving area and the dining rooms. Using this system, officia's estimate that 3000 to 5000 cou'd be cared for in an hour and 20 minutes if emergency conditions should increase the campus population.

Right now, the serving emphasis is on speed, mainly because the waiters are in a hurry to get their jobs done. But Refectory officials are trying to encourage the students to linger at the tables for a little after-dinner sociability. Several of the fraternities sit around for demi-tasse after the evening meal, and some nights the sound of well-fed singing voices emanates from one or another of the small dining rooms for some time after the tables have been cleared. This is all part of the promise expressed in the "Open House" pamphlet which stated: "Rather than merely a place to eat, the Refectory has been designed to become an important center in the social and educational life of all students." It will take time for this design to be fully realized, but the opportunities are there.

Board is contracted for at $215 a semester—$13 a week for 20 meals—or $200 a semester for 18 meals a week.

Attractive as Well as Efficient

The presence of the central serving area, in effect, divides the main dining room into four long dining rooms. Since the ceiling level of the core and of the perimeter dining rooms is lower than that of the main dining room, clerestory windows on both the inner and outer walls provide plenty of natural light, even on the dreariest days. The breaking-up of the main dining room also helps reduce noise, a tendency which is aided by soundproofing in the ceiling. Each perimeter room has two large windows to light its average 623½ square feet.

EYE-CATCHING EQUIPMENT: At right, top, lift raises racks of empty milk-bottles to level of truck tailboard for easy bit of loading. Trucks can be driven inside refectory for quiet and efficiency. Deliveries are checked and weighed, with storage facilities handy. Center, test kitchen includes typical equipment to permit try-out of new recipes and trial of new brands. Machinery below suggests the amount of refrigeration required here.

The decor of the main dining room consists of dark green marbled plastic wall-covering extending to the tops of the doors. Above this the structural cinder blocks, left uncovered, are painted a light green and accented by aluminum strips rising to the clerestory windows. (These strips cover expansion joints.) Woodwork and trim is painted a soft gray-green. Indirect lighting along the walls and recessed spotlights in the ceiling provide abundant artificial illumination. The floors throughout the dining area are of two-tone brown rubber tiles.

All the doors, to the serving area and to the individual dining rooms, are covered with green simulated leather and studded with brass-headed nails. An oval window in each fraternity room door bears the distinguishing Greek letters.

Each dining room has been decorated by its fraternity, most of them fairly simply in two colors or two tones. Of course, there is room for elaboration and re-decoration. Alpha Delta Phi has wood-paneled walls—the memorial gift of Mrs. Joel I. Brooke in honor of her father, Morgan W. Rogers '14. Delta Phi's room is brightened by plaques representing all the colleges at which the fraternity has a chapter. Brown chapter alumni shared the expense of this decoration with the undergraduates. The walls of the Psi Upsilon room are of wood veneer; Sigma Chi has a bright blue ceiling to contrast with its deep coral walls. The 18th dining room, which is finished in a brown and tan combination, is reserved for special luncheons and has already been used several times.

A Vast Culinary Workshop

The dining rooms are a short flight of stairs up from the campus-level entrances. A short flight down, on the kitchen level, is the Ivy Room, a cafeteria for commuters, faculty members, graduate students, administrative personnel, and casual visitors. Walled with ivory-colored glazed tiles and decorated with sprays of plausible ivy, this cheery room is furnished with different-sized tables and comfortable, red plastic-covered chairs. The upper portions of the walls have been reserved for painted scenes representing historic episodes connected with each of the other Ivy colleges.

Full-course dinners (usually a choice of two) as well as soups and sandwiches are on the daily menu, and a soon-to-be-installed soda fountain will cater to snack-seekers during the afternoon and evening. The Ivy Room, which can seat 200 diners at one time, has proved extremely popular and has had twice that turn-over at lunch ever since it opened.

The kitchen is a vast workshop divided into several sections for food preparation and cooking, ample and efficient, with everything purposeful. A butcher shop stands complete with grinding machines, bone saws, and a special cutting room that even has its own knife-sharpener. We asked the chef how much hamburger had just gone through one of the grinders: half a ton in 20 minutes, and twice through at that, once coarse-ground, then fine.

A room for preparing vegetables has electric cutters, abrasive peelers, and scales (potatoes may be weighed before and after to check the loss in paring). Convenient, removable chopping boards in stainless steel work-tables are another Davis idea. A separate area is allocated for salad-making, and there is nothing haphazard about those fine salads, either. Fruits and vegetables can be washed by the bushel in huge stainless steel sinks.

Each section has its own refrigerators. Where necessary, different chambers provide efficiently progressive chill—from the outer coolness to a 42-degree refrigeration, and on into a deep freeze. There are 10 refrigerators in all throughout the kitchen, including two freezers (five degrees blow zero) and a cool room where perishable meats may be prepared and stored with other foods in warm weather. Each refrigerator has a thermometer and a thermostat on the outside for easy regulation of the inside temperature. To save wear on the door gaskets of the walk-in boxes, specially designed life hinges were installed; the usual thresholds were eliminated.

Stocking Up for a Whole Semester

The butcher-shop refrigerator has enough space for more than two weeks' supply of meat, thus permitting the buyers to take advantage of seasonal price changes. (Brown used to have to rent outside storage space to do that.) Using all the auxiliary meat-storage facilities, a whole semester's supply can be laid in.

Rows of kettles and ovens and fryers and grills make up the cooking section which is able to process the food for 2000 dinners at one time. There are 12 ovens large enough to roast the bulkiest of meat, 72 22-pound turkeys—enough for that many people. The rest of the meal can be prepared by the nine pressure cookers, one 60-gallon jacket kettle and eight 40-gallon jacket kettles (for soup-making and steam-cooking), and four 30-foot work tables with warming ovens. Eighteen bushels of vegetables can be cooked in the pressure cookers alone.

In addition, six deep fryers and six broilers and griddles can be used for specialties on the menu. Cooking is by gas, electricity and steam. Odors and grease are drawn off through filters in a 79-foot stainless steel hood that hovers over the cooking area, preventing contamination of the system which circulates fresh air throughout the building. These filters are easily removed for cleaning.

The bake shop has its own cooking equipment. An eight-shelf, gas-fired, rotary oven which can bake 200 10-inch pies or 200 cake layers or 900 muffins or 900 rolls at one time is supplemented by an electric pastry-roller that can turn out 100 pie crusts an hour. For doughnut-making there are two deep fryers; for the concocting of sauces and fillings there is a range with two tilt-kettles. In a large proofer (a chamber into which hot, humid air can be pumped) bread or biscuit dough can be raised in 20 minutes, about one-sixth the normal time required. Adjacent to the bake shop are two ice cream machines and a special refrigerated room for hardening the freshly-made product.

"It Takes Human Beings, Too"

Head Chef Mike Scalzi, whom hundreds of Brunonians will remember, warns against expecting too much of machinery. "Buttons, buttons," he muttered to one visitor. "You got buttons that go on and buttons that turn off. Everybody thinks that's all you need these days. The buttons and the machines help here and there. O.K., sure. But it takes people to make the dinner come together. Don't forget that. It takes human beings to cook food." With that in mind, we were somehow pleased to see a few homely items among all the bright new mechanism. One chef, for example, still had his old wooden condiment box beside him on the new stainless steel table. It was a tool of his art that he was used to.

All final food preparation is located near the core elevator so that oven-to-table time is kept at a minimum. A test kitchen, which has one of every piece of cooking equipment found in the main kitchen, will be used to try out new recipes and test new brands. Menus will be rigidly examined here for nutritional value and taste appeal.

And in the midst of all this, Scalzi has his command post, a little half-walled cubicle from which he can observe "what's cooking" in his kitchen. Davis and Maynard and SOUP-KETTLES GLISTEN in the new Refectory at Brown. Eight of the stainless-steel cookers, heated by steam jackets, have 60-gallon capacity, while a ninth holds 100 gallons. their staff occupy simply-furnished offices in the northeast corner of the kitchen level.

Besides the refrigerators there is a large storage room for non-perishables in the basement, and, on the kitchen level, a smaller room for items that are to be used immediately. Here, too, are the ice-making machines, two for cubes and one for shaved ice. This smaller room is just off the receiving area which was designed with two considerations in mind: convenience and quietness.

With plenty of space to get off Thayer St., delivery trucks back up to the front portion of the receiving entry (the kitchen level is flush with the street at this end of the campus) and unload the goods onto a tailgate-high elevator. Then the truck drives away, the outside doors are closed, the elevator is lowered to floor level, and the cases and cartons are removed to storage. With this operation carried on completely behind closed doors, even the rattle of milk cases will not disturb the residential atmosphere. A platform scale for checking weights is built into the entry, and an adjacent refrigerated refuse room keeps garbage unobjectionable until it can be removed. In another room is a machine for washing garbage cans. An incinerator and disposal units throughout the kitchen take care of other waste.

The $23,000 triple-armed dishwashing system was especially designed to complement the efficiency of the serving core. Trays full of used tableware are lowered from the dining area on the four dumb-waiter subveyors that transfer them to traveling belts at the kitchen level. These belts carry them to tables where the utensils are sorted by hand and then fed into the three washing machines. Dishes and trays go into either of two machines with interconnected compressed-air driers. Silverware, glasses and bottles go into a third machine.

When the silverware is washed, it is sterilized and dried in two automatically-timed machines nearby. A specially designed rack for the glass-washing machine permits milk bottles to be rinsed out by the case. The efficiency of this conveyor system is seen in the fact that it carries 80 trays from serving core to washing machine in three minutes. The tableware for an entire meal—with each diner averaging 10 pieces—is washed and dried in a single hour.

Good housekeeping is easy in the Refectory. All food preparation areas are walled with ivory-colored glazed tiles and have quarry tile floors with rounded junctures and corners. The floors, both in the kitchen and in the refrigerators, are pitched toward trench drains for easy washing, and all equipment is either on raised bases or on legs.

The "Moat" Will Let in Light

Stainless steel and black porcelain enamel make the equipment itself easy to keep spotless. In the entire kitchen there is not a single threshold. This arrangement not only makes flushing the floor easy, but it also allows food trucks to be rolled from section to section and right on to the core elevator. Every bit of equipment that can be portable to advantage has been so made.

Partitions between the kitchen sections are also of glazed tile and are limited to 4' 6" to allow circulation of air and light. Adequate natural light is provided by large windows facing on the so-called "moat"; artificial lighting is fluorescent. The entire building is conditioned by a circulating system that takes in fresh air at basement level, distributes it to the other two levels and exhausts it by means of roof-level fans. Cupolas and the height of the main dining room roof hide these fans and necessary elevator machinery from campus view.

All rest rooms are on the kitchen level, one each for men and women near the Ivy Room, and the rest just off the kitchen for fulltime and student help. Lockers for employees are adjacent to the rest rooms, with showers available to the fulltime workers. The head chefs have their own locker and rest room with shower stall. A unique feature here is the absence of washstands from any of the kitchen rest rooms. Instead, they are located throughout the kitchen proper, for ready and more frequent use.

The basement, besides providing storage space and housing the air intakes, contains hot water tanks and refrigeration machinery. A sub-station, already built in, will eventually transform electricity bought at high voltage and low cost into current to supply the entire Campus. Provision has also been made for the installation of deep-freeze lockers.

Other Refectory features include provision for a public address system with a variety of amplifier locations for special occasions. The entry ways have glass-partitioned windbreaks between the outside and inside doors. One vestibule has a ticket booth for such functions as may need it, and coatroom space is located on both dining room and Ivy Room levels.

19 Consolidated into One

The economies made possible by the consolidation of 19 dining places (Faunce House Cafeteria, Flattop and the 17 fraternity dining rooms) into one are obvious. Savings in delivery charges alone—of food, supplies, laundry, etc.—are considerable: one official has estimated that ice cream is $.25 a gallon cheaper when completely delivered in one stop than it used to be when 19 stops were necessary. The number of full-time Refectory help is 60 as compared to the 94 persons required for the operation of the dining rooms before. The exclusiveness of equipment design is expected to pay for itself in labor savings within six years.

The portable nature of much of the preparation and storage apparatus makes possible the serving of meals, hot (or cold) from the Refectory, at other University locations such as the President's House, Faunce House, Sayles Hall, U.H., etc. Service is the word that best describes the new Refectory.

* * * * *

It is not possible to give credit here to all those who made a 1951 reality of a 1937 dream. Alumni on the Quadrangle Building Committee include Vice-President Thomas B. Appleget '17, Donald G. Millar '19, H. Stanford McLeod '16 and W. Easton Louttit '25. Mrs. Henry D. Sharpe H'50, wife of Chancellor Sharpe, and President Wriston are other members. Thomas Mott Shaw of the Boston firm of Perry, Shaw and Hepburn is the architect for the entire building program. General contractor for the Quadrangle is the Gilbane Building Co.—Bill and Tom, both '33. Kitchen and dining equipment, designed expressly for the Refectory by Henry C. Murphy, was manufactured and installed by Jones, McDuffee and Stratton, also of Boston. And numberless are those whose enthusiasm and generosity encouraged the undertaking of the ambitious project.

Many, indeed, are the people who will watch the giant on the Hill with interest in the years to come, and great are the expectations that it must fulfill. In these still early days it is giving sure indication that it will not let its envisioners down.

Community interest in Brown's development was evidenced when some 4000 people walked and looked and questioned their way through the new Refectory on a stormy Sunday afternoon. The University's invitation to attend an "Open House" from three to six on Jan. 28 drew professionally interested restaurateurs, hotel men and caterers as well as curious neighbors and "displaced home-owners" who came back to see what had gone up when their houses came down. Even some of the Gilbane workmen visited with their families to show off the result of almost two years' labor. It was a revelation and a satisfaction.

Wristons Spend March Abroad

PRESIDENT AND MRS. WRISTON are in Europe, having left March 3 for 40 days of travel in England, France, Italy, and Switzerland. One errand was on behalf of other American educators in investigating the possible establishment of a European center of undergraduate study for American students.

"The practice of having American college students spend their Junior year abroad has been successful," Dr. Wriston says, "but, broadly speaking, it is not vigorous." He explained that the majority of American students do not speak a foreign language well enough to study in most European colleges. The possibility is being explored, therefore, of setting up a special institution under American sponsorship where the Junior year abroad might be centered. No move in this direction is expected to materialize before 1952.

The Wristons will have covered considerable ground before embarking on the "America" April 5. Stops include: London, Geneva, Berne, Lugano, Taormina, Palermo, Naples, Rome, Florence, Venice, and Paris.

Rooms on Campus at Commencement

ROOMS ON CAMPUS will again be available to alumni and their families during the Commencement season at Brown, it is announced by Ward A. Davenport, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds, and William N. Davis, Manager of Student Residences and Dining Rooms. There will be no increase in price for this accommodation, of which hundreds of Brunonians have availed themselves in the postwar years.

The charge will be $2 per night per person, covering room, bedding, towel, and soap. Occupancy may be arranged to include the Memorial Day holiday as well as the Commencement weekend, if this is desired by any who would thus be able to make the campus the base of their operations for the longer period. It has not yet been determined which dormitories will be used, and this decision will depend on the location of Seniors and others who retain their rooms over Commencement. However, it is definitely planned to have a guest house at Pembroke for wives and daughters, in addition to space in the Brown dormitories for the men.

ALUMNI BACK FOR ADVISORY COUNCIL had their first Refectory meal in February. View shows only part of one of four quadrants in the main hall. Waiters assist in "family-style" service.

How the Ice Champions Repeated

One of two Eastern representatives in the NCAA hockey championships at Colorado Springs, Brown University defeated Colorado College, upsetting the defending title-holders 8-4, but lost in the finals to the University of Michigan 7-1. The April issue will carry full details.

WE HAVE ANOTHER CHAMPION in our midst—or, rather, the same champion holding on for another year and even looking toward greater honors. The Brown hockey team has repeated its leadership of the Pentagonal League and seems headed for the national tournament in Colorado as one of the two eastern nominations for the NCAA finals. It is an outstanding group which would do credit to any title.

The Ivy League's Baker Trophy stayed at Brown following six victories in eight games. The Bears split decisions with Dartmouth and Yale, losing at home in each case, but winning all engagements with Harvard and Princeton. In addition they broke even with two other powerhouses, Boston University and Boston College, but the only other loss in the 22-game schedule was to the non-college team of N.Y.A.C.

As Bradford D. Davol, Jr., Director of Athletic Publicity, points out, Coach Wes Moulton has been building a hockey team for four years, and this is the season that effort has paid off. With the highest scoring line in the East and an All-American goalie in Don Whiston, Brown completed a season with a 16-5 record.

Don Sennott, center ice on the first line, has broken all of Brown's previous scoring marks, with a total of 63 points, highest in the East. A great playmaker, he actually netted fewer goals than his left wing, Bobby Wheeler, who tallied 31 times and added 26 assists for a total of 57 points. The third member of the trio is Tony Malo, one of three Canadians on the Varsity, who missed four important games because of an injury but accounted for 38 points, even so. The three-man total is thus 158 points, tops for the East. An accident brought them together, for Malo did not join the other two until appendicitis sidelined Johnny Casey last winter. They hit it off so well, they were retained as a unit this year.

Power in Reserve

But what has made Brown a strong club this season has been the depth of its material. There is no let-up when the second line or the third take over on the ice. In some games, it has been these replacements who have provided the punch needed to win. And spares have seen plenty of service when regulars were out of action.

Montreal-born Casey centers the second line, one of the game's cleverest stick-handlers. Al Gubbins (Coach Moulton told the Advisory Council he was the most "under-rated" man on the squad) had some fine nights, while Warren Priestley again proved reliable and versatile.

The leading scorer last year, he was tried out at defense experimentally for a bit when Captain Jim Sutherland was ineligible during the first semester. But he has too hard a shot to leave in the back zone, and his fast skating was important in "man-short" penalty situations.

The third line is the Sophomore trio of DiBiase, Petit, and Vernet. The first two were co-captains as Freshmen and led the scoring. Vernet joined them at midsemester with the return of Sutherland after having filled in at defense. The other stalwarts on defense are Jake Murphy, Jack Gilbert, and Bob Maley. Continuing where he left off last year, Don Whiston has again earned All-American citation. No All-Star team ignores him. His average in college competition this year was 1.6 goals per game, several enemy scores coming while the alternate goalie was in the nets.

One earlier group of Brunonians might dispute any assertion that this 1950-51 team is the greatest in Brown hockey history. The 1930-31 team had a nine-one record, but comparison of the schedules might still leave the honors with the current players. In any event, the team of 20 years ago is not jealous of the Bruins of today, for two of the old-timers are still with the sport on the Hill. The All-American center on the 1930-31 team is the present coach, Moulton, while the left wing on that same line is the team physician, Dr. G. Edward Crane.

Brown 6, Princeton 1: February play resumed after the midyear interval with the 6-1 victory over Princeton in Providence. The Tigers, who had been expected to crowd the League this winter because of the quality of their Sophomores, had an in-and-out year but won some good ones. Malo of Brown was their nemesis, however, as Tony scored a total of seven goals in the two victories over the Tigers. This was the fourth in a row over Princeton.

Brown 6, Boston University 4: The Terriers had won the nip-and-tuck battle in Providence in January and started out as though they would make it an easier second victory. But Brown, behind 4-1 in the first period, roared back with five straight goals in the next two. Whiston was magnificent—"the best game of his career," his coach said. Just about every player got into the attack, throwing power play after power play into the B.U. zone, and even the Life-publicized Garrity ("Mr. Hockey") couldn't save the Terriers. The victory revived again the hopes of a tournament bid. Malo was hurt in the first period, being replaced on the first line by DiBiase, while Vernet was cut badly when a teammate stepped on his foot in the dressing room during the post-game excitement.

Brown 8, Springfield 3: Springfield was first to score and it was not until mid-period that the Bears got the goal back and pulled ahead. Down 3-1, the Gymnasts again drew first blood in the second session, but the Brown attack rolled thereafter. Wheeler was top gunner with four goals. Coach Moulton was able to use some of his reserves—North, Collins, and the faithful spare-goalie Dion.

Brown 9, Army 3: The exceptionally large ice-sheet at West Point and a packed Cadet defense gave the Bruins trouble at first, but they had little difficulty once the adjustment had been made. Sennott finally put the production on the road after the first 14 minutes, followed by Priestley. After Brown had run it up to 6-0 with a barrage in the second period, Dion replaced Whiston and performed creditably. The Brunonians came away with the victory and a flock of colds that didn't help them in their next outing.

Yale 3, Brown 2: Because the Bears had won in New Haven 4-1, Coach Moulton didn't like the psychological set-up on this one, and his fears were justified. He knew Yale was good (it had won six straight and went on to beat B.C. a few nights later). He knew his own boys were not in good shape as the result of colds and lack of ice for practice. They looked below par right from the start, although Wheeler gave Brown an early lead on a 35-foot shot, the only goal of the first period. The second period was all Yale's, although the Blue scored only once, after two minutes. In the third period Whiston was beaten on a beautiful play, and the 2-1 deficit roused the Bears for the first time in the evening. The Yale goalie was kept on the hop from then on but held firm until 75 seconds before the end of play. In the overtime Brown continued the aggressor, giving goalie Cruickshank several close calls. The Bears were finding themselves and outplaying the visitors, when the tide suddenly turned on a quick sortie by Noble and Smith of Yale. Whiston made one stop but missed the second off the rebound. The heart-breaking sudden-death goal came at 7:46 of the overtime, just when it looked as though Brown had found itself after the ragged play earlier and as though the worst it would get would be a tie.

Brown 13, Williams 3: Journeying to Troy for this game on neutral ice, Brown maintained a sizzling pace against Williams and ran up its biggest score of the collegiate season.

Brown 11, Boston College 2: Both teams wanted this one badly to stay in the running for the NCAA playoffs, but Brown was at its peak of the campaign, as close to perfection as a college club is apt to be. The Bears set such a pace that they had poured in six goals in the first period, passing crisply and shooting truly on one of those instinctive nights when everything clicks. The Eagles, previously unbeaten by Brown since the latter revived hockey, were faced with their first shutout in many a year until three minutes from the end of the game. Brown netted eight goals in the first 22 minutes, with seven men sharing the scoring for the evening. Priestley climbed out of an infirmary bed to play one of his best games. Though overwhelmed this night by Brown, B.C. showed its quality the very next night by beating the University of Toronto 4-3, with the same goalie who had yielded 11 scores to Brown starring against the Canadians. (And Toronto was one of the few to beat Michigan this year.)

Brown 6, Dartmouth 1: The Bears continued in high gear at Hanover by taking a lead on Sennott's 30-footer after only 25 seconds of play. Dow evened matters a few minutes later while a Brunonian was being penalized, but Wheeler broke things wide open six minutes before the end of the period on two clever set-ups by Sennott just 26 seconds apart. Wheeler made it three in a row 12 seconds after the second period had started, and Gilbert and Malo kept it up in the third.

Brown 5, Harvard 1: A battle of goalies was won hands down by Don Whiston in Boston Feb. 27 when he blocked 33 Harvard shots while his rival was missing five out of 35. In addition the Crimson netminder had brilliant assistance from his defense men, which thwarted a consistently pressing Brown assault again and again. This defense was particularly tight in the first period when most of the play was around the Harvard cage, but the only score was Sennott's unassisted sizzler when he recovered his own pass-out from back of the nets during a wild scramble near the crease. Casey and Petit sewed it up in the second period, while Gubbins added two more points later. Several times Harvard skaters got behind the Brown defense only to be turned back by Whiston's artistry. Although Harvard wound up in the Ivy League cellar, it had shown itself a good club at Christmas time by beating Minnesota twice in overtime and splitting even with North Dakota.

Brown 8, American International 2: Goalie Astorino of AIC met the toughest challenge of his year in the first period of Springfield, allowing only Gubbins' goal at the four-minute mark. But Wheeler performed the "hat trick" with three straight tallies inside of five minutes in the second session. Whiston, again superb in the nets, lost his shutout in the third period when the East's third highest scorer, Bucholtz, beat him. That shutout evaded the Brown goalie all year, incidentally.

Dartmouth 4, Brown 3: This was a nightmarish sort of night for the Brunonians. They didn't need this game to win the Pentagonal title, for Harvard had surprised Yale with a 4-0 whitewash earlier in the week and the Bears could not be dislodged from first place. But they wanted to show that they were qualified for the Colorado trip to the NCAA playoffs. Dartmouth had nothing to lose, and it had a good, though unpredictable team, that had tied Yale, beaten B.C., and scored a couple of League victories. A packed Arena was backing the Bears in the last game of its regular season.

The Indians stole the play right at the start with a goal by Stien in 1:09. It wasn't until 11 minutes later that Sennott got it back, and DiBiase put Brown ahead shortly afterward only to see Waters tie it up again before the end of the period. Dartmouth's brilliant Harrison made it 3-2 eight minutes along in the second frame, a goal which Petit matched. The third period was scoreless at the 17-minute mark when Maley was sent to the penalty box, and the crowd groaned. Just when it appeared that Brown would weather the attack, with only nine seconds of the penalty-time to serve, Brower of Dartmouth stole the puck in the Brown zone, skated behind the cage and passed out to Dunlap who beat Whiston on a perfect play. Instead of firing the puck out of its defensive area, Brown had elected to try to rag and lost the gamble.

It was a tough one to lose, for the Bruins had swarmed into the Green territory all evening long. Their timing was off, men were out of position, shots were wide, but even so they gave the Dartmouth goalie 49 stops against 15 for Whiston. McMahon was extravagant in his success before the nets. Dartmouth, on the other hand, playing a deft game which entitled it to all credit, made the most of its fewer opportunities. It capitalized on Brown penalties for two of its goals, and another one came on an accidental carom off a Brown defense man, into the cage without Whiston having a chance. But there was no horseshoe on Harrison's score.

It was a good, clean game but a disheartening one. The puck just wouldn't go past that man McMahon. In two games against Brown his saves totalled 96.

The Freshmen: Although the Freshmen failed to win a game against collegiate competition, they had a fair season and reached their best form at the end of the season when they beat Melrose High, a first flight schoolboy club. Burrillville, finalist in the New England tourney, nosed them out 3-2.

The Varsity's problem of getting ice for practice was even more aggravated in the case of the Freshmen, and Coach Bob Priestley had the problem of taking 20 boys who had never seen each other before to play together as a unit. One of the roughest decisions to make was the choice of a goalie from among the seven candidates, and three eventually were used, usually being alternated during a game. The first line looked promising, including Art Vietz, who scored 10 goals and six assists to take the honors for the squad, and Jack Farrell, and Ron Urquhart. Dick Pettit, Pat Goggin, and Jim Gerlach were the best defense men.

They wound up by winning three, tying four, and losing four. The victims were East Providence, Cranston, and Melrose. Ties were with Malden Catholic, a strong outfit, Harvard, Hope, and La Salle. The losses were to B.C., Yale, Harvard, and Burrillville.

They Kept Shooting Baskets

WHEN THE BROWN BASKETBALL season started this year, most of the fans felt sorry for the gang of shorties that had to carry the load. Fortunately, Coach Morris and his small squad had no notion of folding. They went out and had themselves a season. They even won the State championship.

There were dark spots—defeats by American International, Army, Colby, and Dartmouth were no great credit. But the nights when they were "up," the Bruins were able to take on the best of them. They upset three clubs which were later tournament choices. They won eight and lost 11, but five of the victories were by one or two points. They dropped only two of the close ones. Winning four of seven on the road, they seemed to respond better to the hostile crowds there than to a half-empty gym at home. (Everyone was watching hockey.)

It was a superbly conditioned and loyal Varsity, for most of the playing was done by seven men. Three of them were no taller than five-seven, midget-size for modern basketball. That meant few rebounds on offense or defense, but they compensated by developing the best set-shots from outside in Brown court history. Faithfulness in practice brought that brilliant facility, as it did the ability to control the ball in "freezings" that protected several close victories. Its floorwork was good, its team spirit high.

The Freshmen were a fair club, with a 12-9 record. Several of the Cubs will provide Varsity candidates of better-than-average competence.

Holy Cross 83, Brown 68: The Crusaders' confidence in this game seemed justified. They had won 15 straight on their home court and had tournament hopes, while Brown, out of action for three weeks, had won only four of nine games previously. For the first eight minutes the Bears were out in front and kept well up for the first 17, but the Purple had a spurt just before the intermission that gave it a 48-38 lead. Returning, the Bears slumped badly, getting only two baskets in 12 minutes. By the time they started to hit again, they were behind 65-50 and stayed there. The Bruins missed a half-dozen easy shots from close in, but rustiness was not the whole story: the Crusaders were too lanky and too good.

Brown 60, Connecticut 58: The tall Huskies were rolling along in a style that was to win them a tournament berth, later being chosen to represent New England over Holy Cross. They had won 15 of 17 games and were the hosts at Storrs to a team it had beaten in Providence 64-58. But Chuck Whalen, whose home is in Connecticut, played one of his best games, put Brown ahead 58-57 at 16 minutes in the second half with a lay-up shot, and then assured the victory with another two minutes later. Well-drilled in freezing tactics, the Bears held the lead to the end. Connecticut had started as though it would encounter only minor trouble during the evening, leading 29-19 in the first 13 minutes. Then Gauthier and Creswell started hitting and shaved the margin to 32-30 at the half. Fifteen seconds along in the second session Kozak tied it up, and Christopher put Brown ahead. Falling behind 45-36, the Bruins rallied and again took the lead at the 12-minute mark on Creswell's hooker. From there it was ding-dong to the end. Whalen and Creswell played the full 40 minutes, the latter doing a great job at the backboards as well as leading the Brown scoring with 15 points. It was a great victory by a steady, unappreciated team.

Navy 68, Brown 56: The Midshipmen, with a 13-4 record, were no team to play raggedly against, and the Bears were off-form in the first half, taking 45 shots and getting five baskets. Navy led at the half 35-19. Two spurts after intermission reduced the gap to five points, outscoring Navy 37-33, but that improvement came too late. Navy's floor game was too sharp, and it hit for 40% of its shots in the first half. Brown's best performance was by its foul-shooting ace, Creswell, who sank 11 of 15 tries from the penalty line.

Brown 62, Providence 61: Brown rooters were a minority in the slim Marvel Gym crowd of 750, but they had plenty to cheer about. The Bears raced to an early lead of 18-5, but the Friars solved their early troubles and went ahead at the half 35-34. Except for a few seconds, P.C. stayed on top for the next 10 minutes, once by eight points. But Brown's comeback was sparked by Gauthier who finally stole a ball, dribbled the length of the court and took the lead 50-49. For seven minutes the lead jockeyed with almost every exchange of the ball, but toward the end MacConnell, making one of his first appearances in the Brown line-up, broke the fifth tie with a lay-up, and Gauthier popped in a one-hander from outside the foul circle that provided the necessary edge. The two-minute freeze at the end was classic in its handling. Brown's weaving and ball-handling were good all night.

Brown 78, B.U. 76: This was Kozak's night, as he scored 31 points. Brown went ahead by five points twice in the first half, only to yield a 29-29 tie after 14 minutes. Kozak's driving lay-up brought a 38-37 lead at the half. But before 10 minutes had gone in the second session, Boston had taken eight-point advantages twice. Each time Kozak's scoring bursts brought the Bears back, and at 13 minutes he put them ahead again 62-61. In the next hectic seven minutes the count was evened five times, and the Terriers were out in front 72-70 with 75 seconds left. Ill-advisedly, they tried for a foul shot and missed, yielding the rebound to Brown, and Kozak tied the score as the regulation game ended. The Brown captain proceeded to account for five of his team's six points in overtime, making a game-winning foul shot at 3:50. The 78th point was actually scored after time ran out on a foul committed as the horn sounded. Not more than 250 saw the thriller in Marvel Gym.

Holy Cross 70, Brown 63: The Crusaders won their 17th game in 21, but had to work for the victory in Providence. Short on smoothness but hot on set-shooting, the Bruins forced the crack Purple to play to the limit. Holy Cross accuracy on the foul line really decided the issue, for it had only a 25-24 margin in field goals, but it sank 20 one-pointers, the first 13 without a miss. The Crusaders tied up both backboards and dropped in rebounds to lead by 13 points at the half. Brown penetrated the enemy defenses for lay-ups just 13 times, making three tries good, but the long shots were clean and breath-taking.

Columbia 93, Brown 55: The brilliant Columbia five which went undefeated until tournament season began broke its single-game home-scoring record against the shorties from Providence for its 20th straight victory. Playing at home, the Lions sank 48% of their shots, tallying 12 times on rebounds off friendly backboards. Brown was close, 23-19, for only nine minutes of the going, but Kozak was the only Bruin who could penetrate Columbia's aggressive man-to-man defense.

Dartmouth 69, Brown 68: The Bears hoped for this one against a team which had won only twice in 23 games. Both teams were under even their par, for five Greens stayed behind with colds in Hanover, including one regular, and Brown had three injured men playing—Creswell, who had a badly bruised thigh; Gauthier, with a bad leg; and Christopher, with a sore wrist.

It was a good battle all the way. Posting a margin of 38-30 at the half, Dartmouth added seven more to make it 45-30 before Brown recovered. Then the Bears started chasing and caught up at 60-60 with seven minutes left. It was see-saw from then on with Dartmouth's three points at 17 minutes the biggest gap. Badoian, spectacular with his set shot, tied it up again at 68-all. The Green's winning shot came on a foul with 46 seconds remaining. The following freeze was broken only once: Creswell stole the ball brilliantly and drove down the court for a lay-up, but he was too careful. The ball rolled around the rim into the hands of a Green player, and the golden opportunity was wasted. That missed shot, normally the easiest in the book, is what you remember about the game. It would have been a sweet one to win, but no one blamed Creswell, for he had done more than his share all along, leading the Brown scoring with 19 points.

Rhode Island 79, Brown 70: Despite the fact that the Bears had beaten State earlier for the first time at Kingston in 16 years, there were only 566 to see the return encounter. Dominating the first half 47-35, State fought off a Brown rally that netted 17 points in less than seven minutes. The Bears went out in front 52-49, but Rhody's counter-attack brought a 79-60 recovery.

The last 10 points were all Brown's, in the last two minutes against State reserves. Christopher missed this game and the next, ineligible for academic reasons, and Brown missed him.

Brown 69, Providence 64: The Friars had just won two tournament games that gave them the New England berth in the NAIB finals in Kansas City. They wanted to avenge Brown's earlier triumph, too. But it also was a blue-chip game for the Bears, for Kozak, Whelan, Creswell, and Gauthier were playing their last basketball for Brown. Brown could win the State championship by taking this contest, too, and did so.

Before the game, Kozak was given the Grimshaw Trophy as the outstanding Bruin on the court this winter. Avoiding the jinx that sometimes accompanies such an honor, he proceeded to have himself a night, pacing his men as they gained a 42-24 leeway at the half. Then the action was faster as P.C. came with a rush, twice driving within three points at 52-49 and 67-64. For the second time against the Friars, good freezing won for Brown. It was seven in a row against the cross-town rivals.

The Freshmen: The Cubs battled Holy Cross in a good game, closing a 31-26 half-time gap to one point and later trailing only 57-54. But the Purple Frosh netted the last six points and won 63-54. Murgo was outstanding for Brown with 26 points.

Murgo made it 125 points in four games when he dropped in a winning foul-shot against Connecticut at Storrs. Of his 25 points, the last was the most important, and he was a very poised young man when he took the vital shot with 17 seconds left. The 69-68 victory was the Cubs' seventh in 11 games. Newport Naval Prep had a 74-56 margin in winning the next one. The P.C. Freshmen took two, 65-48 and 75-73, but the second was the heart-breaker, for Brown was ahead with seconds left in the regulation session only to grant a tie on a 20-foot shot and lose in overtime. Murgo scored 31 points against B.U. Freshmen and Norm Sprinshall helped with 24 more as the Cubs won 70-62. Holy Cross had an easier time in its return game, which it won 78-49, for it had improved markedly and had won 15 out of 16. Coach Jack Heffernan had a chance to use his whole bench in a romp against Leicester Junior College, 87-38. The Cubs made it two-in-a-row over the Rhode Island Frosh, 77-62, as Murgo racked up 31 points and Captain Plentzas 13. Taber Academy was beaten 65-56, although the schoolboys rallied from a 20-point deficit at the end of the half and once were within six points of a tie. Andover won 65-59, despite a 33-point performance by Murgo.

Westerly High defeated De La Salle, defending champion, in the Rhode Island schoolboy tournament in Marvel Gym.

The Best in 20 Years

THE 1951 Varsity wrestling team is the best one Brown has had in 20 years according to Coach Anderton, and he ought to know—he was a member of that undefeated 1928-29 squad!

On the last day of February, the Bear matmen climaxed an eight-win, one-loss season, and Dave Michael finished his collegiate career without a single defeat in dual competition. Other record-making Bruins are Marc Rowe, who was unbeaten all season, and Dana Eastham, who has suffered but one loss since he started wrestling as a Freshman last year. Team victories since mid-terms were over Harvard (the first Brown triumph in this rivalry since 1929), MIT, the University of Pennsylvania and Wesleyan. Yale provided the only "blot on the scutcheon" by winning 15-9 in a meet without falls.

Yale power stopped three Brown winning streaks: of the Varsity, of the Freshmen and of Eastham. For the Varsity, the trip to New Haven meant the end of this season's unbeaten string; for Eastham it was his first defeat in collegiate wrestling. But for the Freshmen it was the breaking of a victory record that reached back to 1948—the consecutive wins were stopped at 21.

Against one of the best 167-pounders in the country, George Graveson, Eastham managed to hold his own until the final period. Then the Yaleman scored on a takedown and a reverse to gain an 8-1 decision. Angus MacLean and Marc Rowe won close, hard-fought matches in the 137- and 177-pound divisions, respectively, matches that could have gone either way. At the end of his bout, MacLean was tied with Don Teare of the Bulldogs but time advantage gave the Bruin the nod, 6-5. Through the second period, Rowe and his opponent, Rienhoff, matched points with reverses to stand at 2-all. But in the third round, Rowe made an escape to chalk up the winning tally.

Michael won his 157-pound match easily. Lightweights Bill Bass and Bob Dolt lost as did 147-pound Dave Seaver, and Captain John Chernak was overwhelmed by the Blue heavyweight, 7-1. The Freshman score was 16-13.

The big 19-13 victory was over Penn. when Brown captured the last four bouts to return triumphant from Philadelphia. Because the Quaker heavyweight, Austin Hepburn, had to attend a wedding, the unlimited division opened the meet. Chernak wasn't bothered by this switch, however, and proceeded to take a 3-1 decision on a third period leg-dive. Despite this encouraging start, the Bruins were trailing after the 123-pound class went by default and Dolt was pinned in 2:55 of the second period of the 130-pound class.

Spirits were revived when MacLean put on a fine exhibition of leg wrestling to ride Joe Muldoon to a 6-3 decision. Unable to score in the first period, MacLean employed a figure four from both sides, a cross-body ride and a grapevine in the remaining time to achieve the win, riding Muldoon right out of the ring more than once.

When Seaver lost his bout, Brown was behind 13-6. At this point Michael stepped onto the mat to pin his opponent with a double armlock and start the Bears on their winning way. Eastham followed suit, pinning Hal Leeds with a cradle at 6:40 after the Penn grappler had gone ahead in the second period. This was in the 167-pound division, and Rowe's 4-1 decision over 177-pound Jack Evans clinched the meet for the visitors.

Against Harvard, Chernak started the final event carrying a slim Brown lead of one point. At the end of the second period, he was trailing 1-0, but a third round takedown and reverse plus some time advantage gave him the decision over the Crimson's Heidtmann. Eastham was the only Bear to score a fall, pinning Neil Hastie in 4:08.

Michael and Rowe won shut-outs, 6-0 and 7-0 respectively; and MacLean, wrestling cautiously with Icko Iben, an opponent he defeated by a single point last year, waited until the third period to score a reverse that almost became a pin. Harvard's points resulted from pins in the 123- and 130-pound categories and a close 5-3 decision over Seaver. It was Brown 17, the Crimson 13.

Wesleyan proved a formidable foe before yielding 19-15, and Eastham was the only Bruin to gain a pin at Middletown. (He scored with a double bar arm over Jack Hulton at 3:35.) Two falls were registered against the Bears, in the 130-pound class over Dolt and in the unlimited division over Dave Lyons, subbing for Chernak.

Mutual forfeits in the 123- and 137-pound classes balanced out, and Brown had to win the rest of the bouts to take the match. Seaver came through in fine style, decisioning his opponent, 7-3, with two takedowns and an escape plus time advantage. Michael then scored a 4-0 win in climaxing his perfect dual meet record, and Rowe decisioned Wesleyan Captain Neil Keller, 10-4, in a hard-fought battle all the way.

The one-sided victory over MIT, 24-8, saw MacLean and Michael pinning their respective opponents, with decisions going to Eastham, Rowe and Lyons. Rowe's win was another unanimous one, 9-0.

The Cubs didn't let Yale's halting of their three-season march bother them for long; they have already started on another winning streak with four victories as a 1951 start. Setting the example for the Varsity which usually follows them, the Cubs have downed Harvard, 21-10, blanked MIT, 34-0, and beaten Wesleyan, 16-14. All on their own, they overcame the U. S. Naval Academy Prep team, 19-13.

An early lead insured victory against the junior sailors who captured the last three bouts but couldn't amass enough points to win the meet. Lightweight Jim Kurfess and 157-pound Jon Fay scored falls, while decisions were chalked up by Mike McSherry, Joe Meschino and Gordon Webster to establish a 19-0 lead before the prepsters started to work in earnest.

Against the Harvard freshmen, Fay again pinned his opponent as did McSherry, and Kurfess, Meschner, Webster and Gerry Towle (in the unlimited division) scored the necessary wins to give Brown the victory. The rout of MIT was accomplished by four falls, three decisions and a forfeit.

Good Swimming

AS THEY headed toward the defense of their New England championship on March 9-10, the Brown swimmers could point with pride to a dual meet season of six wins and two losses behind them. Their second defeat came at the hands of Harvard, but a conquest of the UConn that set four records and a thrilling victory over Dartmouth added to the 1951 squad's already considerable laurels.

The Dartmouth meet was decided by a rip-roaring finish that saw Co-Captain Bob Barlow, swimming the anchor leg of the 400-yard freestyle relay, beat out the Indians' John McIntyre by an arm's length to avenge a previous defeat in the 100-yard freestyle, and set a new Varsity record.

Juggling his line-up to build the point-lead he knew he was going to need, Coach Watmough raced the co-captains, Barlow and Duncan Gray (both swimming their last dual meet), together in the 50-yard freestyle. The gamble paid off and their first- and second-placings, plus a win in the 300-yard medley relay, put the home team ahead by 12 points. McIntyre's triumph over Barlow equalled a Colgate-Hoyt record for the 100, set by Matt Chrostowski in 1935, and narrowed the lead to seven points. Then Jack Fuller won the backstroke event and Gray, trailing until the final turn, churned his way over the last length to a new Brown breaststroke record of 2:25.8.

In the 440-yard freestyle, the Bears could take no better than third, and Dartmouth's accumulation of seconds and thirds plus its two wins brought the score dangerously close. Thanks to Otto Pfannkuch's first in the diving event, Brown held a two-point edge going into the final race.

The seven points for the 400-yard freestyle relay would give the victory to either team. Don Englehard led off and managed to keep up with Dartmouth's Kay most of the way. Second-man Harry Newhard lost some headway in the turns and Gray entered the race about three lengths behind. But, gaining gradually, he touched the mark even with his opponent to send Barlow into the water at the same time as McIntyre. This time it was Barlow's turn and he swam beautifully, pulling ahead in the last lap to snare the vital seven for Brown. The time of 3:39 was 1.3 seconds faster than that set by Barlow, Gray, Wilson and Dolan in 1950. For the Co-Captains it was a memorable climax to a pair of outstanding collegiate swimming careers.

Traveling to Storrs after a month's lay-off for midterm exams, the swimmers won seven of the nine events and broke four pool records in doing so. In the 300-yard medley relay, Fuller, Gray and Barlow shaved nine seconds off the former mark; in the 220-yard freestyle, Don Cameron set a new record of 2:19.5; Gray beat the old breaststroke marker by 7½ seconds; and Pfannkuch was awarded the most points ever received by a diver at the pool, 83½. (In all fairness, it should be noted that the pool is only in its third year.) Connecticut captured firsts in the 50-yard freestyle and the 440-yard freestyle; its win in the 400-yard relay was nullified because the fourth man jumped the signal.

A classy Crimson squad turned the trick in its home pool as Yale had earlier, and the Bears, despite winning both relays and taking two firsts (in the 200-yard breaststroke and the 440-yard freestyle), came out the loser in a 43-32 score. In winning the breaststroke, Gray finished six yards ahead of Harvard's Emerson. Cameron was able to pull away from Fouquet only in the final length in his 440 victory. Brown's wins in the relays resulted from disqualifications of Harvard teams for jumping.

On an extra-curricular jaunt, the Varsity 220-yard freestyle team of Barlow, Gray, Cameron and Newhard won the Worcester Boys' Club memorial relay race. In the 31st annual Brown Inter-scholastic Swimming Meet at the Colgate-Hoyt Pool, Pawtucket East emerged the winner with a 19-point advantage over second-place St. George's.

Freshmen Boast Stars

For the Freshman swimmers, the past season has consisted of one smashed record after another. Ralph Brisco and Ronny Wills, the leading iconoclasts, are members of a squad that Coach Watmough has labeled one of the most promising ever to enter Brown.

Against the UConn, Brisco established a new Brown Freshman mark of 23.7 for the 50-yard freestyle, breaking the 24-second record set by F. S. Carter '43 in 1940. Against Harvard, Brisco tied his Connecticut time, and in a meet with Moses Brown, he knocked a full second off the 100-yard freestyle record of 54.2, set by F. M. Lee '35 in 1932. In the season's final dual meet, with Quonset, he broke Phil Carson's ('44) 1941 time for the 200-yard freestyle by almost three seconds. His time: 2:03.4.

Wills is the other consistent record breaker and maker. At Storrs he lowered Englehard's (now of the Varsity) 150-yard individual medley mark to 1:47.5. He took .3 seconds more off this time against St. George's; and, at Harvard, he smashed another Englehard record by more than three seconds when he swam the 220-yard freestyle in 2:25. He won the breaststroke event at Harvard as well; but, even though he and Brisco were both double-winners (the latter captured the 100 as well as the 50), Crimson depth proved enough to insure the visitors' defeat, 50-25.

St. George's Van Hoffman touched out Wills in the breaststroke and thereby set a new record for his school of 1:06.5. The 150-yard medley relay and the 200-yard freestyle were captured by the prep school swimmers, too, but Brown took the contest, 40-35.

Going into the final event of the UConn meet, both squads were tied at 34-all. Here the Frosh's 200-yard freestyle team of Paul Wittreich, Harry Goodfriend, Harry Duane and Fritz Klein displayed its best to nab the race and make the victory, 41-34. Wills was the only double-winner against Quonset, which meet the Cubs won, 40-35. The final score over Moses Brown was 43-32.

Indoor Track

INDIVIDUAL track performers—miler Walt Molineux and high-jumper Tom DiLuglio—have distinguished themselves in Varsity dual competition and in the regional games, but the team itself has not followed the winning ways of last year's stars.

Defending champions in the NEAAU meet at the Cranston Street Armory in February, the Bears could take no better than fourth place behind Boston College, Tufts and Springfield. Molineux won the mile event by six yards and DiLuglio tied Newman Prep's Lochiatto for first with a jump of six feet, one-eighth inches, far below the meet record of 6:7 that he established (with Penn State's Jim Herb) early in January at the Washington Star Meet. Seconds by Mel Holland in the 600-yard run and Dante Matteodo in the shot-put were the only other points the 1950 champions could garner. Even Bill Dwyer '48, former undergraduate star and national indoor sprint titleholder, lost his 50-yard dash championship after two years. A graduate student at Springfield, he races for the R. I. Track Officials Association.

Molineux has been a consistent winner this season, and only the misfortune of having to run in the fastest qualifying heat in the trials kept him out of the running at the IC4A finals in New York. He was judged third behind Georgetown's Carl Joyce and Princeton's Dick Snedeker, but his time of 4:17.8 (just .1 second slower than Joyce's, the fastest of the evening) was better than some others who did qualify in slower heats. Earlier, at the Millrose Games, he joined with teammates Ralph Lee, Holland and Harry Wood, to upset Williams in a relay.

In the meet with Yale, Molineux was the only double-winner, capturing the mile and the 1000-yard run. These were two of the Bears' three firsts, the other one being provided by DiLuglio whose jump of six feet, four and three-eighths inches bettered Keith Brown's 16-year New Haven record. The $\frac{1}{4}$ point in the final score—Yale, 75 $\frac{3}{4}$ —Brown, 28 $\frac{1}{4}$ —resulted from Allen Boyer's four-way tie with three Yale men in the pole vault.

The Tufts contest was featured by the establishing of a new world record in the 35-pound weight throw. In achieving a distance of 60:11, Tufts' Tom Bane broke the record, set in 1949 by Army's Jim Scholz, by $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Earlier, in the 16-pound shot-put, he was second to Brown's Matteodo. Bruce Ford won the 50-yard high hurdles and Joe Marcello tied for first in the 50-yard dash, but Brown still came out on the short end of a 66-38 score.

Some measure of revenge was achieved when the Freshmen overcame the Tufts yearlings, 57-34. The Cubs, who have lost only one out of four dual meets, also downed LaSalle, 40 $\frac{1}{2}$ -31 $\frac{1}{2}$. The high school team piled up a point-lead by winning five of the six running events, but Bill Reid's first in the 600-yard run and second-placings in the other races equalled victory when added to Brown firsts in the shot-put and the high jump. Joe Watmough, Jr., son of the swimming coach, is a dependable weight-tosser, and a late season starter in the jump, Stan Deck, has raised Track Coach Fuqua's hopes.

Skiers Win Four Meets

FOR THE PAST FOUR YEARS Brown skiers have been journeying into the hills of northern New England, each season with greater success. The climax has come with victories in four straight meets in February and March. Having qualified for the NEISC Championships in April, the undergraduates who form the team of the Brown Ski Club are faced with a financial problem and are uncertain about raising enough money to continue their campaign. An appropriation of $100 from the Committee on Student Activities has been the limit of help which could be given by the University, since this is an unofficial team. Such aid is not ordinarily available but was a recognition of the work of the undergraduates in 1951 competition.

Jim McKnight, a member of the team, writes of Brown skiing as follows:

The Brown ski team originated shortly after the war as a concession to the competitive instincts of some members of the Ski Club. Early efforts were modest. In the first meets, the hickory riders came off second best to nearly every team they raced. Although a few individuals stood out, the team as a whole was pretty disorganized.

In the winter of 1948-49, the Bruins entered the New England Intercollegiate Ski Conference, a league composed of such schools as Boston College, Tufts, Holy Cross, Boston University, Springfield, Vermont, University of Massachusetts, Bridgeport, Northeastern, New England College, Lowell Textile, Worcester Tech, and Babson. With Jack Underhill as captain the team began to progress. Herb Hunt, a Freshman, arrived from Gould Academy of Bethel, Me., where he had skied with Dick Ireland, an Olympic possibility if not a probability. Underhill, Hunt, Ivan Laric, and Gordon Whitney gave promise of better things for the Bruins. However, competition was stronger, too, and the squad fared little better than its predecessors, generally holding up the league from the cellar position.

Last year Hunt took over as captain and led the team to a reasonably successful season. Bill Polleys and Hunt finished consistently in the top ten as the Bruins took fourth place in all four scheduled meets. During the season, at one time or another, they defeated each Conference opponent. Bill Floyd, Jim McKnight, and Marsh Greene rounded out the roster with Wes Hall and Gordon Whitney sharing the number six spot.

This winter, with the five regulars returning, but without University subsidy at first, the team picked up where the previous season had left it, taking fourth place in a field of seven in the William A. Henry Memorial Trophy race. Sumner Young, a Freshman from Wayzata, Minn., turned in an unexpected fifth-place performance to lead the group.

When Hunt left to join the Air Force at the close of the first semester, Polleys succeeded him as captain and led the team into third place in the Asa Osbourn Trophy race at Intervale, N. H. New England College of Henniker, N. H., took the nine teams to win its second straight meet. Polleys took a fifth, while Ray Perkins finished 16th as the Bruins' second man.

On Feb. 17 the Bruins saw their long hopes materialize. At Intervale the Bruins set down the other six schools, including New England, B.C., and B.U. to win the McClintock Trophy race. In taking their first meet, the polar Bears placed men in the third, fourth, and fifth individual places. Polleys finished the tight 30-gate slalom in third place, followed in order by Young and McKnight. Greene was the remaining Bruin to score, taking 20th in the field of 42. Bill Floyd, after a 10th-place initial effort, fell on his second run—the first such mishap in over a year of competition. John Livingstone finished 29th in his first race for the Bruins.

At the time it seemed unlikely that the team would be able to go on to the Championships in April, for which it qualified by winning the McClintock. After three meets at their own expense and training excursions extending from before Christmas, the team was near the end of its financial shoestring. Parental coffers were close to being exhausted. But the Bruins went to Tamworth Feb. 25th to win the Djerne Johansen Trophy, with Polleys fourth in combined totals, McKnight fifth, Young eighth, Greene 14th, and Floyd 18th in the field of 54 from nine schools. The totals: Brown 876, Northeastern 836, New England 829, B.C. 802.

Brown won the Foley Memorial Trophy on Thorn Mountain by less than a point's margin: 183.3 to 182.4 for New England. The fourth straight victory was at Intervale.

The Baseball Schedule

WITHOUT DISPUTING the merits of the earlier Commencement dates at Brown otherwise, the change has resulted in shortening the baseball season for the Bear. The 1951 schedule, announced by Athletic Director Paul F. Mackesey, opens April 11 and ends May 16. Of the 15 games listed, nine are Ivy League contests, while the others are with traditional rivals nearer home. Six games are scheduled for Aldrich Field, nine away.

With no adequate indoor cage and no Southern trip, Coach Lefebvre must count on good weather to assist his acceleration program for the team. But he feels, nevertheless, that prospects are bright. The schedule follows, with home games indicated by an asterisk:

April 11—R. I. State. April 14—UConn. April 17—R. I. State.* April 19—Holy Cross. April 21—University of Pennsylvania. April 25—Yale. April 28—Columbia.* May 2—Harvard. May 4—Army.* May 5—Cornell. May 9—Dartmouth. May 11—Navy.* May 12—Princeton.* May 15—P.C. May 16—P.C.*

Taxable Professors

UNIVERSITY GOOD-WILL toward the Rhode Island community was unequivocally expressed when the Brown Corporation, on the recommendation of President Wriston, requested the State Legislature to remove the historic $10,000 tax exemption for University professors.

Under the terms of Brown's charter, the exemption could be abolished only with the permission of the Corporation. The General Assembly acted on the proposal in January, granting the University request that the exemption elimination pertain only to professors named after the bill is enacted. All professors who now enjoy the tax privileges will continue to do so.

President Wriston pointed out that the University has always taken the situation into consideration in establishing professorial salaries and that now changes will have to be effected to compensate for the taxation.

The Brown Clubs Report

Boston's Star Events

UNDER THE LEADERSHIP of the Brown Club there, Boston alumni are preparing to welcome New England Brunonians to two major events on the spring program: the annual Brown dinner on April 16 and Brown Night at the Boston Pops on May 7.

The dinner will be held in a familiar setting at the Hotel Shelton on Bay State Road, formerly operated under the Sheraton name. The speakers will be President Wriston (within a week of his return from Europe) and Erwin D. Canham, Editor of The Christian Science Monitor. This fine bit of program-making ensures a good evening for the diners. The alumni will sit down at table at 7, with a social hour preceding. The members of the Boston Club will assemble for their annual business meeting at 6:30. Ralph Mullane '19 is chairman of the committee which is handling the arrangements for the evening. Club President George Channing '11 will also participate actively from the head table.

The annual Brown Night at the Pops has become a great drawing card in recent years, and again the Brown-Pembroke Chorus will have a guest role on the program for May 7.

On March 13 Alva Kelley, new head coach of Varsity football, was the speaker at the monthly luncheon. The Club utilized the occasion to introduce Kelley to the Boston press. In February Coach Moulton brought the inside story of the championship hockey team to an interested luncheon group.

Blaisdell Retires

WHEN THE BROWN CLUB of Alta California held its Annual Dinner Meeting Feb. 16 at the Fairmont Hotel, San Francisco, 24 Brown Alumni were present to honor Nathaniel Blaisdell '83, who at this time has completed 53 years as President of this Club. Nathaniel Blaisdell organized the Brown Club in San Francisco in 1898. The occasion was the visit to San Francisco of Benjamin Ide Wheeler, Class of '75, to confer with the Regents of the University of California. And in 1899, Dr. Wheeler became President of the University of California at Berkeley. Mr. Blaisdell, in 1898, got the Brown Alumni in San Francisco together, and they put on the dinner honoring Dr. Wheeler. And at that meeting they started our local alumni organization, Mr. Blaisdell being elected its President.

Each succeeding year from 1898 up to this year 1951, Mr. Blaisdell has been re-elected and has carried on as our Club President. He has seen his Club grow from a half-dozen names in 1898 to a list of over 160 Alumni in the area which includes the Northern half of California and Nevada. At our meeting this year Mr. Blaisdell asked that the responsibility of Club President be passed on to another alumnus. And Mr. Blaisdell was then unanimously, and with our gratitude and love, elected President-Emeritus of the Brown Club of Alta California.

The other Club officers elected are: Dr. T. Harper Goodspeed '09, President; Robert E. Soellner '24, Vice-President; Fremont E. Roper '11, Secretary; Myles L. Grover '38, Treasurer.

Mr. Blaisdell and Austin Allen '04 visited George F. Weston, '78, Brown's oldest living alumnus in San Jose, California, on February 16, and they told the story of their visit, as George Weston's health did not permit him to attend our dinner. The six alumni who were attending the Club annual meeting for the first time all told of how they happened to be living in California now. And the new officers of the Club each gave a brief summary of their present work and business.

After the business meeting, our New President called upon Austin Allen '04 to recite one of the many poems which Austin can recite so well. And Austin responded by reciting the famous "Down-East" poem entitled "Elkana B. Atkinson" by Holman Day which "brought down the house," and surely closed our Annual Meeting of 1951 in a mood of hilarity and Club enthusiasm.

Brown Alumni attending included: Nathaniel Blaisdell '83, Dr. Alexander Meiklejohn '93, Trueman D. Woodbury '03, Austin K. Allen '04, Dr. T. Harper Goodspeed '09, Fremont Roper '11, S. Lyman Mitchell '12, David G. Goddard '24, Robert E. Soellner '24, Aylwin Probert '25, Parkman Sayward '25, Dr. William D. McCarthy '31, Hugh S. Butler '32, Henry E. Stanton '34, Dr. Charles B. David '36, Myles L. Grover '38, Donald W. MacMillan '38, Dudley A. Zinke '39, Melvin M. Swig '39, H. S. McIntyre '39, Joseph E. Kelly '42, Charles H. Biesel '48, Curvin J. Trone, Jr., '49 and Charles H. Jackson '50.

NATHANIEL BLAISDELL '83: After 53 years, retirement from the presidency of the Brown Club he founded.

Leland for Wriston

THE LUNCHEON was originally planned to catch President Wriston as he passed through Washington on his way back to Providence from a conference in December. But, when his traveling schedule had to be revised, Brown Clubbers in the national capital held the meeting anyway and a successful get-together it was.

To "sub" for the President, Club President Don Ranard '40 sent in Dr. Waldo Leland '00 who delivered a short course in "Organization and Operations of the Corporation." Next, Jim Bennett '18 tossed off a lecture entitled: "Obstacles Encountered in Getting a Degree from Brown" or "Sink or Swim."

Those there to enjoy the varied program included: Bill Barton '45, Ed Bennett '42, Jim Bennett '18, Charles Brooks '01, Howard A. Coffin '01, Art Doherty '40, A. C. Eastburn '12, John French '25, Jim Hines '35, George S. Holmes '04, George Hurley '41, Ted Jaffe '32, I. B. Lees '47, Charlie Lloyd '42, Joe Lyman '35, Tom McCabe '40, W. J. Miller '35, E. Francis Mullin, Jr. '46, Harvey Nanes '37, Don Ranard '40, Leon E. Truesdell '07, Theodor P. Von Brand '50, Dick Walsh '37, Robert R. Williams '35, James Wilmot '08.

On Feb. 13, the Club elected officers just in time to send the new President, Richard L. Walsh '37, to the annual meeting of the Associated Alumni in Providence. Dick brought a list of the officers with him: Vice-President Ross DeMatteo '35; Secretary William J. Barton '45 (fresh from Buffalo B. C.); and Treasurer Harvey Nanes '37. He also had a report of the meeting, which featured the first appearance of new Football Coach Al Kelley. Other speakers on an impressive agenda were Senator Theodore Francis Green '87, former R. I. Governor Norman S. Case '08, James V. Bennett, '18, Director of the U. S. Bureau of Prisons, and Brown Director of Athletics Paul Mackesey '32. About 40 members attended this interesting meeting. The Fund in the Field

ORGANIZATION of workers for the 1951 Brown Alumni Fund campaign nears completion with the appointment of Regional Chairmen who will supplement the activity of Class Agents. In Rhode Island and the metropolitan areas of New York and Boston there will be regional agents for each Class. Forty-six percent of Brown's alumni reside in those three districts, according to an Alumni Fund Office survey.

Of the remainder, 88 percent reside in nearly 200 other communities in the United States which have at least 10 Brown men each. To such communities the Regional Chairmen and their workers will bring an element of personal approach.

First regional appointments by the Alumni Fund Trustees have been announced by Chairman Thomas F. Black, Jr., '19 as follows:

California: Los Angeles—Stephen H. Dolley '42. Connecticut: Greenwich—Walter W. Burbank '37; Hartford—Paul E. Monahan '34; Litchfield—Francis I. Enslin '25; Manchester—Russell B. Grannis '36; Middletown—Alvin D. Johnson '39; New Haven—Robert B. Dugan '33; Norwalk—Hugh H. Conklin '37; Norwich

FOR 83 YEARS such committees as this have met to plan an annual dinner for the Sons of Brown in New York. Arrangements for the 1951 reunion evening, April 12, at the Hotel Roosevelt are in the hands of this group: left to right, Robert M. Golrick '47, Edward Sulzberger '29, Chairman E. R. Alden '23, Gavin Pitt '38, Edward J. Gorman '23, and Ralph M. Palmer '10. They were meeting at the Brown Club.

A Night at the Museum

THE VISIT of members of the Brown University Club in New York to the Museum of Natural History Jan. 24 is spoken of in the Club's Newsletter as "one of the most enjoyable spots in the Club's social year." Many of those present have asked for more gatherings of a similar nature under Brown Club sponsorship.

The evening for the alumni, wives, and guests began with a social hour and buffet supper featuring beef and kidney pie. Afterwards the guests accompanied Dr. Burns of the Museum staff on a tour that took them backstage to see new exhibits in various stages of preparation.

Plans for the annual dinner April 12 move ahead under the chairmanship of E. R. Alden '23. The dinner at the Roosevelt will bring President Wriston before a Brown audience almost as soon as he steps off the America on his return from Europe. Tickets cost $8.00, with a special rate of $6.00 for those out of college five years or less.

Denver's Seven

SEVEN MEMBERS of the Rocky Mountain Brown Club gathered with their wives at the Cosmopolitan Hotel, Jan. 28, to welcome Dean of Admission Emery Walker '39 to Denver. It was a cold and stormy night for the first Club meeting in many months.

Emery gave an interesting and clear-cut picture of some of the problems facing Brown in this crisis, dealing at length with the current status of undergraduates. He told of the evolution of the striking brochure, "Student Life at Brown", and brought pictures of the Campus, delighting those present with his witty commentary thereon. Though the room was cold and we sat wrapped in heavy garments, Brown songs and cheers provided the necessary warming and glowing note.

Denver Brown men have inaugurated monthly luncheons, held the third Wednesday each month in the Coffee Shop of the Cosmopolitan Hotel. All Brunonians are welcome to attend.

Those at the meeting included: Floyd C. Fay, Jr. '18, Gerald Richmond '36, Frank E. Merchant '31, W. Clayton Carpenter '06, Thomas F. Egan '48, F. J. McGarry '44 and Judge Joseph E. Cook '14.

Luncheon at the Casa

THE BROWN CLUB of San Diego (California) held its first 1951 meeting Jan. 26 at the famed hotel, Casa de Mañana, La Jolla, as guests of the Club's Vice-President, Col. Henry R. Dutton ('19), also Vice-President and General Manager of the "Casa." The meeting included a delicious luncheon, for the "Casa" is widely known for its outstanding cuisine.

The next meeting is scheduled for March 31, as a Saturday noon luncheon at a convenient downtown San Diego locality, in the expectation that a large percentage of the Brown men in the locality may attend and elect officers for the ensuing year. The present officers of the Club are: President—Reginald H. Poland '14; Vice-President—Col. Henry R. Dutton '19; Secretary-Treasurer—Allen Huntington '43. Dr. Poland has been traveling extensively in Europe for several months but recently has written his friends in San Diego that he expects to return shortly.

Because of its comparatively recent organization, The Brown Club of San Diego has not established a fixed date and place of meeting. It is expected that the Club will meet regularly as soon as the most convenient time and place have been found.

The January meeting included women from Brown, for interest has developed in forming a Pembroke Alumnae Club. Seven Pembroke members attended: Dorothy Page Mills ('38); Hope Willis Huntington ('44); Alice B. Eliot ('00); Olive Bilsborough Cowell ('35); Dorothy Allen Sheldon ('41); Florence Clifton Smyth ('41); and Mary Pagliaro ('46). The alumni included Col. Dutton, Maj. William J. Reed '13, Herman C. Copeland '10, and Huntington.

A Columbia Sub

WHEN NO CAMPUS representative was able to arrange to attend the February 14 dinner meeting of the Mid-Hudson Brown Club, a Columbia man stepped in and did a fine job. Judson Phillips (pen name, Hugh Pentecost), a writer and lecturer from New York, kept the 17 members in attendance very interested with his talk on "Behind the Scenes at a Television Program." After the formal program ended, everyone stayed around to listen to the Robinson-LaMotta fight.

REFECTORY

A GUIDE TO THE ON

THE WAY IT WORKS:

WITH THE ROOF REMOVED to illustrate the two-level operation, the Brown Refectory looks like these photos of designer's models and the Providence Journal's diagram. Top left, the dining level with the central serving core, the main hall surrounding it, and the 18 perimeter dining rooms. Elevators and subveyor housing may be seen in the core, as well as serving counters. Tables in the dining area suggest the magnitude of the quadrants. The two exterior sets of steps on the left actually face south, about where Benevolent St. used to be; for side is on George St.

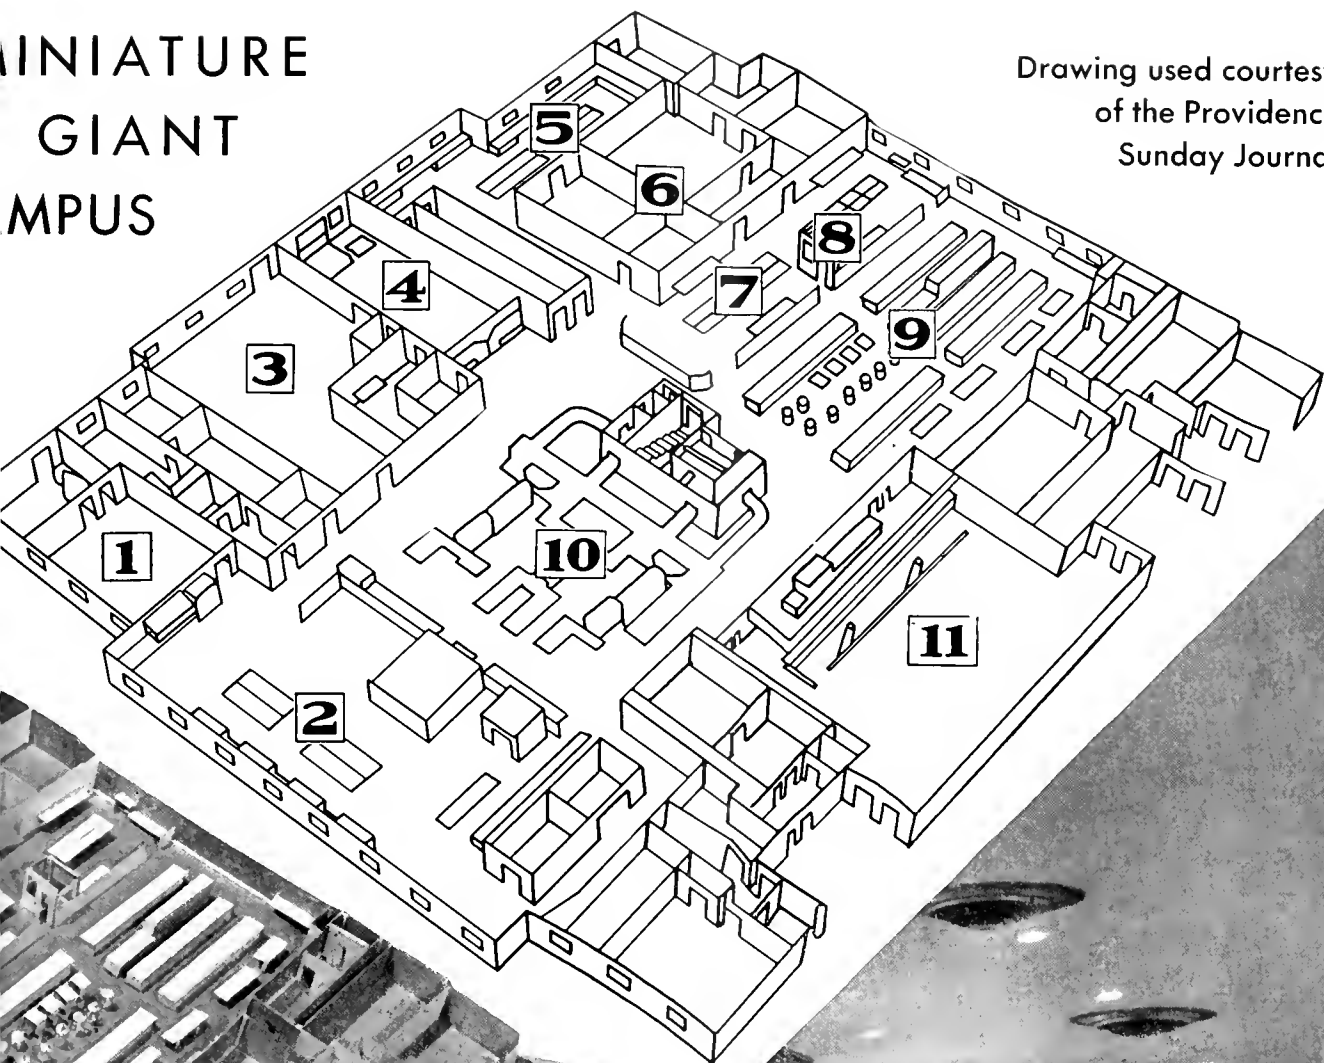

Central photo is of the kitchen level, more easily understood from the drawing at upper right. The key to numbered locations: 1—Administrative offices. 2—Bakeshop containing oven, proofer, deep-fat fryers, counters, and refrigerator. 3—Storage area for canned and packaged food. 4—Receiving entry where trucks can drive in for quiet deliveries. 5—Salad preparation. 6—Refrigerators and deep-freeze storage (a semester's supply of meat can be accommodated). 7—Vegetable preparation and meat-cutting counters. 8—Head Chef's office. 9—Main cooking area with ovens, pressure cookers, fryers, and jacket kettles. 10—Dishwashing area showing belt system to convey used tableware, etc., to machines. 11—Ivy Room (cafeteria). Other divisions represented are washrooms and additional refrigerator and storage space.

Engineers Honor Watson

A TRIBUTE TO Emeritus Professor Arthur E. Watson '88 was a stirring feature of the 38th annual dinner of the Brown Engineering Association held in New York's Fifth Avenue Hotel Jan. 26. A $750 contribution to the Brown Housing and Development Fund was made in honor of Dr. Watson, and accepted by President Wriston from the Engineers' president, Henry D. Wilson, Jr., '29.

Prof. Watson was unable to attend the meeting, being held at home in Providence where his broken hip is mending. But he sent a stimulating greeting to the gathering. By way of reply, the Association prepared a book containing photographs of the meeting, the resolution, signatures of those present, and other pertinent material. When Wilson attended the Advisory Council meetings in Providence in February, he and Robert Perkins '29 visited Prof. Watson to give him the souvenir.

Results of the mail ballot were announced, giving the following slate of officers for the year ahead: President—Henry D. Wilson, Jr. '29; Vice-President—Prof. William Prager; Secretary-Treasurer—G. A. Pournaras '25; Directors—K. D. Demarest '29 and Eliot Bliss '44 of New York; W. H. Kimball '44 of Providence.

Toastmaster Wayne M. Faunce '21 startled the head table at the Engineers' dinner by a revolutionary switch: he put the star turn on first, calling on President Wriston. It was something for the other speakers to have to follow him, for he was in top form as he talked frankly of University problems today. Much of his talk appeared last month in this magazine.

The other speakers were: Alumni President William W. Browne '08; D. Douglas Mercer '06, Alumni Trustee, who was representing the Brown University Club of New York; William B. McCormick '23, Alumni Executive Officer; Prof. G. R. Carrier; W. C. Warthington '23, an honorary member of the Association; and A. K. Gustafson '51, student representative. (Some comments from the official report of the dinner: "If Gustafson is a typical Brown Senior, Brown is to be congratulated on turning out such fine engineers."

"Prof. Carrier gave a brilliant five-minute talk on curriculum changes affecting the engineers. Due to his youthful appearance at the head table, most people thought at first he was the Student Representative.")

In addition to the check for the Housing Fund in Prof. Watson's name, President Wriston was also given a check for $100 as the year's addition to the James A. Hall Fund, in memory of the late Engineering Professor, Class of 1908. Eight Past Presidents of the Association acted as reception committee, while Past Secretary-Treasurer Carl Kuester '26 provided the name tags. E. L. Chandler '09 led the singing of Brown songs, with Earl Eldridge '27 at the piano. E. E. Jackson '11 is to be congratulated on his fine job as Chairman of Arrangements.

The Association showed 472 active members on its rolls, according to John Scofield '15, Secretary-Treasurer. Scofield's retirement from the post was marked by appreciation for his effective faithfulness. . . . In introducing the student speaker, Toastmaster Faunce noted that it was just 30 years ago that he had had the privilege as a Senior of journeying to New York to represent the engineering student body on the dinner program of the Association. . . . The Association's first President attended the 1951 dinner—William E. Farnham '99.

Alumni Hockey Reunion

THAT SPECIAL LOYALTY which hockey seems to instill in its former players was in evidence again Feb. 15 when the Brown Alumni Hockey Reunion was held. They held their annual dinner at the University Club in Providence the night of the Yale game and were joined by other former teammates at the Arena. Coach Westcott Moulton '31 spoke briefly during the informal meal.

Among those noted as present were: Edward H. Weeks '93, Harris H. Bucklin '00, William P. Bates '02, Harold A. MacKinney '02, Dr. Prescott T. Hill '06, Frederick W. Lane '07, Norman L. Sammis '08, Byron Fleming '13, Monroe Fagan '15, Robert H. Goff '24, Charles J. Brown '27, Dr. Arthur Faubert '28, E. L. Howell '28, Prescott K. Bearce '29, Dr. Lee G. Sannella '30, Richard A. Bowen '31, A. E. Burgess '31, John S. Flynn '32, James P. Patten '34, Ed Buttner '34, Gordon S. Smithson '36, Dr. John O. Nolan '36, Gerald Dunn '36, Jackson Skillings '37, Dr. Fred A. Cousins '41, George T. Poor '41, Richard G. Dunn '42, John E. O'Sullivan '42, Richard J. Tracy '46, Donald Campbell '48, Paul H. von Loesbecke '49, Robert H. Davidson '49, Calvin Coolidge '49, Lawrence Shepard '49, Henry Ferrari '50.

Philadelphia—April 27

FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT of the annual Brown Dinner in Philadelphia brings merely the date: Friday, April 27. Presumably this was one of the matters due to be discussed at the regular monthly luncheon of Brunonians at the Alpha Club March 13.

ENGINEERS' DINNER this year was in compliment to Professor-Emeritus A. E. Watson '88. A token was presentation of a check to the Housing Campaign in his name. Dr. Wriston here receives it from Association President Henry Wilson.

Springfield Sports' Night

THE WINTER MEETING of the Connecticut Valley Brown Club was held on Friday, February 16, at the University Club in Springfield with about 50 members and guests in attendance. President Lee Tracy '41, who introduced the speakers, announced that the Club's spring meeting would be held on Friday, May 18th, at the Roger Smith Hotel in Holyoke, with Provost Samuel T. Arnold and head Football Coach Alva Kelley as principal speakers. The annual election of officers will also take place at this meeting.

Paul N. Swaffield, '16, opened the speaking program with a talk on many of his experiences as a football official. He stated that the attitudes of sportsmanship and the clean competition found on college gridirons today are responsible for making American youth unbeatable. He spoke at some length on the 1950 Army-Navy

Fall River Plans

ALUMNI in the Fall River area of Massachusetts are saving the date of May 16 for the biggest Brown dinner in years, when the Brown Club and the Pembroke Alumnae Club will join in promoting the event. President Wriston will be the speaker, and other intelligence is awaited as plans are developed. Brunonians from Newport, Taunton, and New Bedford will be invited to attend.

Three April Concerts

THREE CAMPUS MUSICAL EVENTS of special interest to the alumni will be held in Alumnae Hall during the month of April. Prof. A. R. Coolidge '24 announces for the Department of Music.

The first is the April 13 concert of the Brown-Pembroke Orchestra, Martin Fischer conductor. The piano soloist will be Edward B. Greene, former member of the Faculty of the Brown Department of Music.

On April 24 the Brown University Glee Club will give its Spring Concert under the direction of David Laurent. Richard Leonard '53, piano soloist, and the University Octet will be assisting artists. A feature will be the first performance of a new arrangement of Brown songs by Prof. Millard Thomson. This concert and that of April 13 will begin at 8:30. Although they are in the Brown-Pembroke Concert Series, single tickets will be available at the Alumnae Hall box office or the Department of Music, Prospect St.

Members of the Rhode Island Brown Club and their guests will hear the Orchestra in a "pops" concert April 17, when Fischer will again conduct. Leonard, the Octet, and the Brass Chorus are on the all-popular program. Fred L. Harson '31 is chairman of the Brown Club committee on arrangements. This concert will start at 8:30.

Changing Our Clothes

OBSERVANT READERS have commented, applauding, on our changing format in the Brown Alumni Monthly. To answer some of the questions, we identify our new body-type as Times Roman. Created by the distinguished British designer, Stanley Morison, for use by the London Times, it has not long been available in the United States. It is considered particularly easy to read: "its chief asset is a forward motion which speeds the eye from letter to letter and from word to word." From the point of view of editorial economy, it has merit in providing generous volume for the space involved. We understand we are among the first periodicals to adopt this type. Headings and outlines are set in Spartan, or a blood relative in the immediate family called 20th Century. We've been studying some new suggestions for the cover over a period of a year but encounter some of the usual difficulty in changing something established and familiar, even for something of better design. Your Board of Editors would be interested in your opinions.

In working over the magazine, we acknowledge the counsel of our printers, Vermont Printing Co. of Brattleboro, as well as the personal critique of Otto Forkert, Chicago consultant. The latter has been especially interested in the alumni magazine field and devoted several days to advice at meetings of the American Alumni Council.

Brunonians Far and Near

EDITED BY DOUGLAS A. SNOW '45

1878

THE UNHAPPY WORD from San Jose, Calif., is that George F. Weston, Brown University's oldest living graduate, is seriously ill. On Feb. 16 he was visited by two good friends, Austin K. Allen '04 and Nathaniel Blaisdell '83, who drove down from San Francisco on a beautiful day that saw acacia trees in full bloom and Japanese flowering cherry trees just bursting in brilliancy. Mr. Blaisdell's letter made it seem very vivid to us in the Alumni Office. At the pleasant home in the suburbs of San Jose, they were greeted by Mr. Weston's son, Stewart Weston '08, and the latter's wife, who had been resting "after an all-night vigil in the sick-room." After hospitable entertainment, the visitors were announced to Mr. Weston, but he was unable to respond to their greeting.

1880

Henry J. Boyce of Providence celebrated his 92nd birthday Feb. 9, receiving many friendly greetings. Henry Hobson '06, his nephew, was good enough to inform us of the event.

1887

Dr. Edmund D. Chesebro was recently re-elected to a three-year directorship in the Puritan Life Insurance Co. of Providence. He is Medical Director-emeritus of the company.

Francis H. Brownell presented his resignation as a Director of American Smelting and Refining Co. in New York this winter, and the Board accepted it with regret. Mr. Brownell took the step because of his intention to spend four or five months out of the year in Florida, and felt he should "make way for the substitution of one of the now active, promising younger executives of the Company." His action, Mr. Brownell said, "in no way implies any lessening of interest in the Company." He continued, in his letter of resignation:

"I was attorney for the Everett, Wash., smelter when it was acquired by the Company in 1903 and continued in that capacity. In 1909 I was made President of the Federal Mining and Smelting Company, an important subsidiary. Shortly thereafter, I took legal charge of the Smelter smoke litigation and problems. In 1916 I became a Director and in 1917 Vice-President and General Counsel in New York. Beginning in 1919 I was Chairman of the Finance Committee for 30 years. Beginning in 1920 I was First Vice-President for 10 years and beginning in 1930 was Chairman of the Board for 17 years."

The Board noted that Mr. Brownell had "filled with the greatest distinction a number of important executive offices in the Company, including that of chief executive, and it is impossible to exaggerate the value of his services to the Company. It is only just to record that his contributions to the Company's success have not been surpassed by those of any other individual. The full measure of his accomplishment must be attributed in part to his qualities of kindness, generosity and understanding. . . . It is typical of his steadfast loyalty to the Company that his wise counsel will continue to be available to the management."

Mr. and Mrs. Brownell, who have been married 57 years, have a home on the ocean front at Hobe Sound, Fla. Brunonians will recall his many services to the University, the Brown Club, and Alumni activity in general. He was particularly helpful to young graduates starting out in their business careers.

Want an Old Liber?

WE OFTEN GET requests for back copies of the Liber Brunensis, some years of which are difficult to come by. Leon Drury '33 of 28 Beacon St., Fitchburg, Mass., offers to make available a copy of the Liber for the following years to anyone who notifies him. (You might send him some stamps for postage, we suggest.)

He has a copy for each of these years: 1892, 1899, 1900, 1901, 1902, 1903, 1904, 1905, 1906, 1907, 1908, 1909, 1910, 1911, 1916, 1927, 1928, 1929, and 1930.

Governor Roberts of R. I. paid special tribute to Henry D. Sharpe at the 25th anniversary dinner of the Providence Community Fund. Sharpe was the Fund's first President, serving from 1926 through 1930, and a trio sang a special song in his honor. He is still a Vice-President of the organization.

Dr. Walter G. Cady, who had been a Director of the Long Lane School, Middletown, Conn., since 1911 and President of the Board since 1933, resigned in January. In 1944 he retired from the faculty of Wesleyan University where he had taught Physics since 1902. He has moved out to the California Institute of Technology to study ultrasonics on a U. S. Navy research grant. His address is Norman Bridge Laboratory, Pasadena.

The Robert C. Vose Galleries in Boston continue to attract the interest of the art world and to command the respect of those who visit the exhibitions. One such was a one-man show by William James, son of the famous Harvard philosopher.

1897

Prof. Gregory D. Walcott, head of the Department of Philosophy at Long Island University, recently published a brochure entitled "The Rationality of the World." The sixth volume, too, of the series of Source Books in the History of the Sciences, of which he is the General Editor, has just come from the press. This latest work by Professor Thomas S. Hall of Washington University, bears the title of "A Source Book in Animal Biology." Several other volumes are in preparation. Late last fall, also, Professor Walcott was made a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Associates.

Paul R. Bullard has moved to 25 Park Ave. in Keene, N. H.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., again served as National Chairman of the United Negro College Fund campaign this year. Among his recent public benefactions was a gift of $250,000 to Dartmouth College toward student scholarships which bear the name of President-Emeritus Hopkins.

1900

Classmates Willard H. Bacon and Arthur L. Perry were among the eight charter members who were honored guests at the 25th anniversary party of the Westerly (R. I.) Lions Club in January. Bacon, the Club's first President, gave a brief history of the organization's civic endeavors.

Harris H. Bucklin is a Director of the Fireman's Mutual Insurance Co. in Providence.

The Weekapaug Inn, one of the show places on R. I.'s south shore, has been chosen for Reunion headquarters for the Big 50th this June. Watch the Monthly for more details!

"My finest work that I am proud of," wrote Rev. Bertram A. Warren when he sent us a picture of the St. Paul's Episcopal Church and Parish House in Pomona, Calif. He was Pastor there at one time but more recently was Rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Walla Walla, Wash.

He also advised us of the election of his son, Bertram B. Warren, as Treasurer of General Foods two years ago. Our classmate is looking forward to his 50th Reunion but wondering if he can make the graduation of his grandson from Cornell at the same time. We hope he can.

Frank A. Page was named to a directorship in the Providence Boys' Club in January.

Charles H. Gilmore has moved his office to 30 Federal St., Boston 10.

Ed Lederer and Roy Smith are spending the winter at St. Petersburg, Fla.

S. Foster Hunt was elected Treasurer of Butler Hospital at the annual meeting of the corporation in January. He is also a trustee for three years of Swan Point Cemetery.

Lewis Milner returned in March from a five-weeks' stay in Florida, timing his trip north so he could attend the meeting of the Athletic Council and see the last basketball game.

Sherman A. Allen wrote us in February, remarking that he enjoyed the Monthly very much and never failed to look at the 1903 notes. Then, he added his "bit": A year ago he retired after teaching modern languages at South High School, Worcester, Mass., for 32 years. In October, "after a period of catching up on delayed projects and relaxation at Ogunquit, Me.," he became the Worcester County representative of the National School and Library Division of the Grolier Society, Inc. Recently he was assigned to the R. I. territory and is looking forward to renewing his acquaintance with the State in which he was born but in which he has spent few years. His address is still in Worcester, at 18 North Parkway.

Rev. Douglas Swaffield wrote from Alton, N. H.: "I surely hope to be back at Reunion. My how time flies! Will plan to be there the whole week-end." This June will mark the Class' 45th anniversary away from Brown, and extensive plans are in the making for a memorable get-together of all Classmates. Watch your mail and the Monthly for details. Doug has been instrumental in the forming of the Alton Historical Society and is its first President.

Another Classmate heard from who plans to be around for the big June week-end is Dr. Charles C. Tillinghast whose reason for coming will be twofold. Besides the Reunion itself, he is looking forward to seeing his youngest son, Dave (this year's Bear Cub awardee), graduate. Even in retirement, Charlie keeps busy. Among his varied "outside" activities, he is Chairman of a leading committee of the American Baptist Convention.

Several Classmates attended the funeral services, held in Taunton, for Wes Morse. He was planning on being in Providence for our 45th Reunion this June. We are going to miss this friendly, helpful and considerate Classmate.

The Rev. Harris M. Barbour, Minister of the North Egremont (Mass.) Baptist Church, wants his mail addressed in care of the church.

Henry G. Carpenter does a nice job of editing the Alumni Bulletin of the Collegiate School of New York. We were interested in a recent note announcing that his new Alumni Office there was now open. Carpenter pointed out that he could use on its walls several college pennants, naming a dozen that "should join the Brown pennant already in place."

WILLIAM A. KENNEDY

Leonard S. Little retired Jan. 31 as Manager of the Textile Service Section, Organic Chemicals Division, E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co., to open his own office as a chemical-textile consultant. His retirement is in line with duPont policy but the company will retain him in a consulting capacity. He remains as Chairman of the advisory committee to the Federal Trade Commission on water repellents and has again assumed his Chairmanship of the Executive Committee on Research of the American Association of Textile Chemists and Colorists. He is also head of the organization's general research committee and on the president's advisory committee. He is a Governor of the American Association of Textile Technologists and is a member of several other textile professional groups in the U. S. and abroad.

Through the courtesy of a mutual friend, we've been privileged to read a splendid account of the climbing of Long's Peak, Colorado's highest, by L. W. Joselyn. The Librarian of the Wells Memorial Library in Lafayette, Ind., has a long record of similar feats in the out-of-doors, but we had never read any of his personal narratives before. He writes a fine story.

Charles Hibbard, former Commander, USN, is now the Rev. Charles Hibbard, having been ordained to the priesthood in the Episcopal Church by the Rt. Rev. Benjamin D. Dagwell, D.D., Bishop of Oregon, at St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Eugene, Ore., Feb. 13, 1951.

Dr. C. W. Way is Secretary of the Class of 1903, Peddie School, also acting as the class's agent for the Peddie Loyalty Fund.

The Rev. Oscar Maddaus, retired after his long and noteworthy service as minister of the Community Reformed Church of Manhasset, N. Y., reports his new address to be Valatie, N. Y., P.O. Box 397. Oscar may like to know that Valatie is the birthplace of our Bill Reynolds.

Henry G. Clark and Mrs. Clark spent most of February and part of March at their favorite winter retreat, Nassau.

John L. Curran has moved from North Providence to 282 Lake St., Seekonk, Mass., where he has a fine old farmhouse and a fair number of acres to enjoy. His law offices continue to be at 17 Exchange Place (Phenix Bank Bldg.), Providence 3.

Dr. Frank A. Cummings has the sincere sympathy of the Class in the loss of his wife, the former Irene Seabury, who died in Providence, Feb. 22, 1951. Many of us will recall Mrs. Cummings as the friendly and gracious hostess at the Class Reunion breakfasts at the Cummings' house, 72 Keene St., in major years. At the funeral were President George Hurley, W. P. Burnham, John L. Curran, Dr. Herbert E. Harris, the Rev. Dr. Merrick L. Streeter, and your Secretary.

MARATHON BOWLER: George W. Parker '99 of Concord, N. H., 75-year-old champion, has a single string of 162 and a three-string total of 375 to his credit. In 1935 he bowled 60 strings for a 101.8 average; in 1940, 65 for 100.5. Last Fourth of July he celebrated by bowling 100 strings—from 10 in the morning to midnight, with a total pinfall of 9174. A proofreader, he has been with the Concord Monitor Patriot for 26 years.

Before he started his regular broadcasting of organ music over Newport radio station WRJM, C. LeRoy Grinnell used to play "request concerts" by telephone to hundreds of his friends from Cape Cod to Long Island. The enjoyment thus brought to elderly couples and shut-ins was well worth his high phone bill, he feels. Now, with his radio program, he has established contact with all his telephone audience and more. Roy's story was in the December Hammond Times (published by the Hammond Organ Co.) under the title, "Roy Grinnell, Good Neighbor." Roy was elected Auditor of the R. I. Press Club in February.

Former Representative John J. O'Connor is associated as counsel with the new partnership of O'Connor, Foley & Graininger, specializing in general and admiralty law with offices at 29 Broadway, New York 6, N. Y., and the Washington Bldg., Washington 5, D. C. The O'Connor of the firm is John's son, John J. O'Connor, Jr.

First Class Reunion to eat in the new Refectory scored another first in '09's long list of adventures in their interest in and affection for their College. On Feb. 20, twenty-one of the Class (and Jim Turner's son) enjoyed sitting with the students in the main dining room of the Refectory for their regular evening meal. And a good one it was, too.

Harold Tanner and Billy Miller, our two Brown Trustee members present, took us for a tour through the attractive and splendidly appointed building. Those present were: Ross, Cook, Wells, Tinkham, Sherwood, Littlefield, Miller, Henderson, Buffum, Sweetland, Turner, Connell,

In Lincoln's Church

"DESPERATE PEOPLE AT MY DOOR" was the title of the Saturday Evening Post article (March 3) in which the Rev. James D. Bryden '23 modestly described his wonderful success at solving people's problems for them. He is Director for Christian Education at Abraham Lincoln's old Washington Church, the New York Avenue Presbyterian, and spends half of his time on counselling. He wrote about such strangers who came to him as the lad fleeing from a gang of killers, the lady who planned to leap from the Capitol Dome, and the man who wanted three weeks at a good hotel financed.

There was more about Bryden in "Keeping Posted," especially word that he never uses hypnotism, although he studied it in his graduate work before turning to the ministry. He'd been tempted to employ it because he is five-eighths while a young son is six-two. "A few posthypnotic suggestions might give me added stature in his eyes. But what really tempts me is my daughter's telephone conversations. Wonder if I can take them for another ten years."

Class Night Plans

REUNION CLASSES and other Brown groups are being invited to the Class Night Dance of the Seniors on Friday, June 1, with special facilities announced for their convenience by Robert Anderson, President of the Graduating Class of 1951. As was the case last year, there will be tables for hire provided arrangements are made by May 21.

Most of the Classes used the tables as a focal point of their Class Night promenade activities last year. The prices will be the same this June: $5 for a round table seating 10, $12 for a U-shaped table accommodating 30. A sign with the Class numerals or other designation is included in the price. Reservations should be made with Joseph Fazzano, c/o Student Activities Office, Brown University.

Tickets for the Class Night dance will be $2.40 if purchased in advance, just half of the price charged at the gate the night of the party. The price is the same for a stag or a couple.

Because of the probability of most Classmates' being recalled into service before long, Jay Kaufman is definitely in favor of a "Fifth" Reunion this June. A V-12er himself, who graduated in 1946 but is affiliated with his original Class of '47, he feels that many of the boys in the same situation would like to have their Reunion this year instead of waiting until 1952. We suggest that those who hold similar sentiments contact Jay at 1717 Avenue N, Brooklyn. The Alumni Office and the Monthly will do everything possible to encourage whatever plans are made in this connection.

Dr. Alan Pomerance is a Dental Intern at Montefiore Hospital Sanitarium, Bedford Hills, N. Y. His residence is 588 E. 8th St., Brooklyn 18.

Clayton B. Shiver, with the Texas architectural firm of Kerr and Shiver, lives at 4201 Bowie, Amarillo.

"Am I getting older or is the world getting smaller?" writes Ray Elias from The Cleveland Play House. He bases his query on the number of alumni he has met lately and the amount of Monthly news he has been making. In December he directed the first American production of Henry Gheon's "Christmas in the Marketplace" for a Warren (Ohio) civic committee. Earlier he directed "Dear Ruth" for the Parma Score and Script Guild. Currently, he is on the Play House's promotion staff, contacting different businesses about special group-rate nights. At General Electric he met Doug Tobin '46 who went to the Cleveland plant from Lynn last fall. He reports that Al Borelli '47 is a music critic for the Boston Globe. Bill

Paterson '41 is with Ray at the Play House. On his own hook, Ray has recently completed a one-act verse play and is preparing a theater reference book. For the Cleveland Sigma Nu Association he wrote a new charter. In the light of these accomplishments, Ray has reason to wonder at his age and the size of the world.

John J. Hornyak, Jr., received his B.S. from Cornell in January. He prefers mail at his home address, River Rd., RD 5, Trenton, N. J.

Stephen Prager was one of five young scientists to receive a 1951-52 Frank B. Jewett post-doctoral fellowship granted by the Bell Telephone Laboratories. Each award provides $3,000 for the recipient and $1,500 for the institution in which he chooses to do his research in the physical sciences. Prager, whose father, Dr. William Prager, is Chairman of the Department of Applied Mathematics at Brown, will conduct his research in physical chemistry at the University of Utah. He received his Ph.D. from Cornell in February.

John Koval, who has been with the Courier Service of the U. S. Department of State since graduation, is working out of Paris these days. His duties take him as far north as Stockholm and as far south as Capetown. He finds his ability to speak five languages a big help on the job.

Bill is reporting for the Greenfield (Mass.) Recorder-Gazette. "I have a territory that includes about 5000 good souls," he wrote, "and they make plenty of news to keep one man busy enough so he can say without shame he earns his keep, so to speak."

An announcement has been sent out to all Class members heralding news of the coming "Zebra Derby" (first reunion) to be held in June. The Reunion Committee (see picture) is holding meetings every other Monday, either as strictly business sessions at Alumni House or supper discussions at the Faculty Club. So far, here's the latest:

Plans are centered around Commencement weekend, June 1-4, with the Alumni Dinner starting things off on Friday. After the Dinner comes the always-successful Campus Dance, and Saturday will be the big day. Joe Souza, Chairman of the Outing Committee, is negotiating for a noon-time "brace-up" luncheon and an afternoon of golf, softball, horseshoes and beer (on the treasury!). At sundown, or when the softball has finally been lost in the tall grass, a reception (clink!) and dinner will be held with much food and few speeches. Sunday will be reserved for recuperation and visiting, and those who can are cordially invited to march down the hill with the "baby reunion" Class on Monday.

From here it looks like quite a lincup: more details will be out soon. So, remember, Zebras, watch the mails and the Monthly! and don't forget the Alumni Fund drive: '50 is behind it all the way.

1950 Notes

Ens. Robert H. Nelson is serving on the USS Roanoke in the Atlantic, according to a recent note from his mother. Mrs. Nelson also informed us of Bob's engagement to Miss Lillis O. Palmer P '53, daughter of Dr. Arthur Palmer '11 and sister of Arthur Palmer, Jr., '48.

F. Samuel Nardone was named a director of the Washington Trust Co. of West-erly (R. I.) in January.

George Reynolds, Norm Wiener, Don Bach and Bob Gould wasted no time in getting into the Brown Club of New York. They joined in December.

Vincent McCarthy is a Test Engineer with the U. S. Bureau of Standards. He is living at the Officers Service Club in Washington, D. C., and working at College Park, Md. Jim Cunningham '41, now in Washington with the government, met him and reported the news.

William R. Gregg, Jr., is established in Burlington, Vt., at 2 Bradley St. He's with John Sexton & Co., manufacturing wholesale grocer.

When the Baltimore Colts relinquished their National Football League franchise in January, Don Colo went to the New York Yankees in a player draft. He is recuperating in his Brockton home from severe facial injuries sustained when he was attacked by a pair of drunken hoodlums New Year's Eve. He was a wholly innocent victim, newspaper accounts agreed.

Gale Swartwood, who came into the office to inquire about the January Commencement, told us he is an engineer with Metals Controls Corp. in Attleboro, where he is living at 242 Park St.

John Romano has taken over the management of the Greenwich Inn, 41-room hotel in East Greenwich, R. I., which his father, Michael Romano, bought in January.

Pfc. Andrew R. DeCesare wrote that he was sorry to have "inconvenienced" us by his frequent changes of address. Noting his dateline, "Pohang, Korea", we can easily understand his changing whereabouts. His mailing address is now "L" Btry., 4th Bn., 11th Marines, 1st Mar. Div., FMF, c/o FPO, San Francisco.

Murray S. Danforth, Jr., is a Member of the Corporation of the Providence Boys' Club.

"Bud" McCleary wrote in February that he had had a reunion in New York City with Ens. Al Kerr (who was on his way to Key West, Fla., for special training), Jim DeForest and Norm McGuffog '47. Bud, training with the Simmons Co., is living at the YMCA in Elizabeth, N. J.

Elmore B. Roberts has accepted a call to the First Church of Christ (Congregational) in Clinton, Conn., effective Mar. 11. He was honored at a farewell dinner in January when he took official leave of his pastorate at the Pawcatuck (R. I.) Congregational Church. He is attending Yale Divinity School.

Double-Drafted

UPON GRADUATING in June, last year's court Captain, Francis "Moe" Mahoney, was drafted by the Boston Celtics of the National Basketball Association. Well, Moe is playing basketball these days all right, but not for the Celtics—it seems the Army has a draft system, too.

So, Pvt. Mahoney has been sinking baskets for the Ft. Devens (Mass.) quintet. At mid-winter he was averaging 15 points a game and had hit a 29-point high against the Detroit Vagabonds, a semi-pro team. But Moe's enthusiasm for the "Army game" is qualified; he isn't too crazy about chasing around the gymnasium after a typical G.I. day that starts at 5:30 a.m.

At the season's end, Ft. Devens played the Redheads, an all-girl pro team. A basket by Mahoney decided it, even though he was wearing mittens, as the deal called for.

Small TALK

THE FIRST FEW DAYS in the new wonder-land called the Refectory meant a constant parade of inspecting visitors, goggling and gabbling. And it took even the staff a bit to get used to the place and stop taking the wrong turn or getting caught between doors. It helped little to have a leak in the water main in George Street cut the Refectory off from its supply for several hours on the first Sunday, but this was just one of the minor crises which Manager William Davis and his assistant, Alan Maynard, surmounted heroically.

Our favorite episode—and it was a wholly visual incident which loses in the telling—centered in one of the ladies who thought her department was getting a little too cool and sought to turn off one of the ceiling air-feeders. She wasn't quite sure which button to push or which switch to throw, so that she hesitated about making the move lest she disrupt something more important even than her own comfort. Finally, however, she made the move and timidly flicked a knob on the wall. At the same moment, by pure coincidence, a newspaper photographer at work in the area set off a flash bulb that blinded with its quick light. "Good grief," cried the lady. "What have I done?"

We felt sorry for a boy who had just gotten his diploma at the midwinter graduation and went over to the Refectory for one of the first public inspection periods. "I'm leaving this place too soon," he said after he'd roamed a bit. "I won't be eating here. Instead, I've got to go home and eat Mother's cooking."

► Jim Sutherland, Brown's hockey captain, was a relieved young man when his midyear grades were such that he is again back in the line-up. It is not only that he is a great asset to his team, but it has compelled his friends to let up on one line of humor. Sutherland, you see, is a Brown-town father with three children, and the subject which really gave him trouble in his studies was Child Psychology.

► The Vice-Chairman of the Board of Editors of this magazine may seem to be straying off the reservation as a contributor to the Harvard Alumni Bulletin. In his defense, we should say that it was inadvertent and indirect. George W. Potter '21, a Pulitzer-Prize-winning editorial chief, contributed one of his customary columns "In Perspective" in the Providence Journal when it was his turn to do so recently. He wrote about the athletic heroes of his youth, remarking by way of preliminary that he finds himself thoroughly disinterested in today's crack football teams and players of distant institutions. They, he indicated, would never produce a Ted Coy or an Eddie Mahan. Because of Potter's drooling admiration for the Harvards of the golden age of the Big Three, Primus II, who edits "The College Pump," picked up the column in the Harvard Alumni Bulletin for Jan. 13.

Because Potter more than makes amends through his constant and valued counsel at our own Board meetings, we forgive him his ancient disloyalties.

► J. R. Cave '35 came up to us after the dinner of the Brown Engineering Association in New York and thanked us for getting him an apartment. Our face said, "Huh?" and he went on to explain that there were three would-be tenants hot after the apartment. He got his edge on the others when he discovered a copy of the Brown Alumni Monthly on the owner's desk and was prompted to introduce himself as a Brown man.

► One of us on College Hill, who must of necessity attend many evening meetings and thus miss out on a corresponding number of family dinners, was gratified to learn that he is missed at home. He overheard one of his youngsters say to his wife, "Poor Daddy, he is the one who doesn't see you most."

► Princeton alumni didn't like it much when the Chicago Tribune (Colonel McCormick, an Eli from New Haven, editor) wrote patronizingly: "They're pretty good, but the Ivy League isn't what once it was. We acclaim Princeton as champion of the minor leagues. It can beat Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts, but would be lost among men."

With a conciliatory headline several days later, the Tribune published a letter from a reader: "As a subscriber to your paper, born and raised in the midwest and a graduate of Princeton University, I was stunned and confused by the purpose and objective of your recent editorial, 'The Minor League Champ.' It certainly must have been very satisfactory reading to the eight men on the Princeton football squad from Illinois and particularly the four from New Trier High School who only two or three years ago received acclaim from your own newspaper's sport section as outstanding all-suburban or all-state athletes." The Tribune's heading was: "O.K., The Major League Champ, Then."

► Coach Hal Kopp of Rhode Island State hasn't relaxed on his undertaking to beat Brown in football. But he was startled by a gag at the midwinter dinner of the R. I. Century Club, which is dedicated to "promoting better sports at Rhody." They put before him at the head table a 10-pound bear steak.

► At the time, the editors of the undergraduate Maroon at the University of Chicago didn't realize just how cute they had been. They ran a scare headline on one edition which read: "HUTCHINS OUT." The next line was in type so small that the hasty readers missed it and added "To Lunch."

Howard Mort, Editor of the University of Chicago Magazine, says the few backstage who knew that Chancellor Hutchins did plan to resign were startled. But no Maroon editor suspected he had a real scoop until a little later. In fact, Mort stopped his own presses to accommodate the announcement.

► Dean Kenny, who questioned a couple of questionable columns in the Brown Daily Herald and disciplined the writers, must feel that he could add a bit to what President Dodds said last year about college journalism: "Its role is to comfort the afflicted and afflict the comfortable."

► Dean William C. DeVane, the felicitous speaker at Brown's midwinter Commencement, was off to a fine start on his talk to the graduates when he said: "The open season for good advice used to be confined, like a good game law, to a certain part of the year. Now it may come at any time." He said he was tempted, because of the too dark temper of our time, to quote from Ecclesiastes XII and, like Oscar Wilde, "could resist anything but temptation." He went ahead and quoted, most aptly.

College graduates were assumed to be educated men, he said. "This is a large assumption, but I will stick to it on this occasion." The duty of educated men—their function—was to "put ice packs on the fevered brow of society." Incidentally, he wished that secondary education might be a deep massage rather than "the tickling process it now is."

As for the immediate responsibility of the graduates, he added that he was betraying no confidence that in the near future "many will be called and many chosen."

► Reports from the Brown Clubs, like those annually made to the Advisory Council of the Associated Alumni, could so easily become routine and repetitious. But those of 1951 were a sparkling lot. Jack Monk amused us by pretending to rely on the wrong notes (a recipe involving gin and vermouth). Mel Webster brought the first report from Cape Cod's new Club, showing how "Housing and Development developed us," how President Wriston "comes down to speak at our summer meetings—he lives on the Cape then," and how they have good hopes but don't move fast. ("This is Cape Cod, remember.") Dick Walsh told how members of the Club in Washington "meet regularly and check on each other's loyalty—to Brown, that is."

► Dr. Wriston is not impressed by all the devices being tried out to expedite education in certain quarters these days. It reminds him of the visitor to Paris who boasted that she'd been through the Louvre in 15 minutes. What was more, she said, "I could have made it in half the time if the floors weren't so slippery."
